PENSION ITEMS OMITTED FROM CITY BUDGET

HELD OF LITTLE EFFECT

Money Would Come from General Fund, Anyway, Officials Determine.

A city budget for 1938, without [illegible] request contained in [illegible]men's and policemen's [illegible] was adopted by city [illegible] at a special meeting last [illegible].

The pension items were left [illegible] the budget after City Solicitor Ralph E. Carhart advised [illegible] then it was not necessary [illegible] them. "It wouldn't make a penny's difference in the [illegible] the county budget commission would allow the city, he said.

The solicitor explained the [illegible] of council's right to [illegible] the pensions is before the state supreme court, and that the case may be decided before next February when the 1938 appropriations are made. He added that the city is asking for all it possibly can receive from the county budget commission within the 10-mill reality tax limitation, and that inserting the pension items in the budget would have only the effect of segregating .3 of a mill for pensions for each of the two departments, rather than asking for enough additional funds to meet the pension requirements should the court rule in favor of the pensioners.

Can Be Set Aside Later

"The pension money would have to come from the general revenues of the city and could be set aside when appropriations are made next year if the city loses its suit," the solicitor explained.

City Councilman W. M. Fabian spoke briefly, clarifying the position he took Monday night when he suggested the pensions be included in the budget in view of an appellate court decision against the city. He said he agreed with the solicitor's explanations in every respect and had suggested including the items in the budget only as a safeguard against the city possibly having to issue bonds later to pay the pensions, in which event he declared the taxpayers would be paying twice for the pensions.

The budget as adopted last night was changed to add $1,760 to the employes account at the city sewage treatment works, the only change made since it was read Monday night. The addition is needed to restore the previous operating schedule at the plant, officials said. This change brought the total of the budget for operating purposes of 1938 to $303,287 77 which is $10,193 07 less than the city sought for 1937 when its 1937 budget was made up a year ago and $31,339 77 more than the amount allowed the city for 1937 by the county budget commission.

Deposit Fund Discussed

Mayor Smith called attention of council to a report of state examiners as of Jan. 31, 1936, regarding the deposits of $2 each made by a number of Marion residents to be held in trust by the city garbage department as surety for garbage cans the department distributed during a period of approximately a year when the department was founded about seven years ago. He cited the examiner's report as finding the trust fund had been used for operating purposes in the department instead of being kept in trust, and that the trust account was $1,547 short as of the date of his report. Mayor Smith asserted he felt this amount should be transferred from the general fund of the city to the garbage fund to make the $2 refunds available to persons who wished to claim them.

Although it was generally agreed by council members that everybody who deposited $2 got his money's worth in cans," City Solicitor Carhart was asked to study the law applicable to the situation and make arrangements to make refunds available to can depositors in the near future. The fund will be liquidated as soon as possible and the trust account will be dissolved.

Councilmen Cass, Williams, Zachman and Shuster did not attend last night's meeting.

Triplets And Twins, Born In Marion Within 11 Days, Enter Fourth Month

Children born in two of the most unusual births in Marion's history are shown in the photographs above. It was sleepy time when the triplet daughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Cratty, (pictured at top), were photographed. Their names are Jane, Jean and June. In the lower picture are Mrs. Virgil Parcher and her twins, Larry Lou and Diana Rose, born three days apart.

Three Cratty Girls, Two Parcher Babies Overcome Handicaps of Odd Birth.

By BOB BYRD.

FIVE children whose births to two Marion mothers within a period of 11 days were the most unusual visits made by the stork in Marion county in many years are going into their fourth month after overcoming the handicaps that hover over the first few fragile weeks of life.

At 699 Woodrow avenue, three baby girls, the first triplets in the city's history to survive, vie for the attentions of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Cratty. The girls are Jane, June and Jean Cratty and their friendly smiles during the few hours a day that they spare from sleeping tell visitors they are doing as nicely as any one could ask.

Meanwhile, at 735 North State street, Larry Lou Parcher and his sister, Diana Rose, twins whose birthdays are three days apart (with the mother's birthday anniversary falling between theirs) are making their share of progress, excepting for a slight touch of illness early this week. However, their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil M. Parcher, expect them back in the pink of condition by next week.

All Born Within 11 Days.

The unusualness of the births at the Cratty and Parcher households is heightened by the fact that all five children were born within a span of 11 days. The Parcher twins were born on July 26 and July 29. Larry Lou coming first and his sister on the latter date. The Cratty triplets arrived a few minutes apart on Aug. 6.

Both births are without parallel in the city's history and were so unusual that they attracted widespread attention throughout Ohio.

Both births brought worries for attending physicians and the parents, because it was feared the births to become a new chapter in Marion medical history would also become handicaps to the babies' chance to live.

Get Expert Care.

Fortunately, careful medical attention was provided in both instances and the two babies—one from each of the two unusual families—whose chances were believed imperiled by the circumstances under which they were born were given hospital attention. Today the babies appear to be progressing on approximately even terms, despite slight variations in their weights, and they are generally conceded to have just as good a chance for happy, healthful lives as other babies.

There have been trying times at the Cratty and Parcher households since the stork came. Mrs. Cratty, mother of five other children besides the triplet daughters, finds little time for recreation in a day's schedule that includes routine work for her older children plus the 24 meals a day and other care the triplets require. To top off the work, there's been the problem of selecting names satisfactory to all members of the family. The names Jane, June and Jean were chosen only after several weeks of consideration, and as yet no middle names have been selected.

Powers Decide To Call Duce's Hand in Spain

Committee Meets Tomorrow with France's Patience on Intervention Ended.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 15—Britain and France, determined to make no more major concessions to Italy, planned procedure today for a showdown with Premier Mussolini on the question of withdrawing his armies from Spain.

The climax of 15 months of effort to confine the civil war to Spain will come when the nine-nation sub-committee of the London non-intervention committee meets tomorrow in an attempt to agree on a plan to remove thousands of foreigners fighting in Spain.

France's patience with Mussolini's delaying tactics were plainly at an end. The British were more reserved but the London-Paris allies stood agreed to speedy counter-measures to restore "the balance in Spain" if the sub-committee's deliberations prove fruitless.

British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, in another of his frequent indirect pleas to Il Duce to bury the hatchet, said last night "we have the shortest memory for quarrels of any nation in the world," but added significantly:

"If we are attacked we should know how to defend ourselves as we always have done in the past but it is not in the temperament of our people to bear malice."

Referring to both Spain and China, Chamberlain said:

"We shall continue to seek and take any opportunities that may offer to remove the causes of ill will and suspicion among nations."

Another strong indication that Britain was determined either to make effective the 27-nation Spanish non-intervention agreement or take measures to counteract Italy's great activity in Spain came from the Times of London which is close to his majesty's Conservative government.

Marion Co. Schools Field for New Training Plan

Selected by State for Pioneering Venture in Education.

BY JACK ELLIOTT

Marion county schools this year are pioneering in a program which it is hoped will ultimately enable public education to turn out a far greater percentage of fully developed, well-rounded children than in the past. The program, still untried and tentative in outline, centers around David L. Temple, who has been sent here under the supervision of Ohio State university as the first psycho-educational consultant for a public school system in the state.

In the words of Mr Temple it is an undertaking which "will offer to parents, teachers and children possible solutions to the many and varied problems that confront all children in the processes of growing up."

More or less in the experimental stage now, Mr. Temple having only been here three weeks, the program will be brought before the teaching staff on Oct. 23 when there will be a panel discussion at Central Junior High school with all teachers of the county attending.

Depending upon how successful it is this year, the program may become a permanent part of the Marion county educational system and spread eventually to other school systems, according to Supt. P. T. Mills.

Suggestion by Mills.

Marion county was chosen for the pioneering since the program is an outgrowth of a suggestion made by Mr. Mills to university officials. Mr. Temple is under the supervision of the university with Mr. Mills as local administrator.

The panel discussion will be held in the forenoon and will bring together the various agencies which are cooperating in the new program. Dr. L. A. Cook, professor of sociology of Ohio State university, will act as chairman and seated around the conference table on the stage and engaging in informal but directed discussion will be Mr. Mills, Dr. Wilda Rosebrook of the psychology department at the university, Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner, Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast, Mr. Temple, a P.-T. A. member and a teacher.

Teachers composing the audience will be able to see the program in the light of health, the juvenile law, the sociologist, the educator, the administrator and the parents, Mr. Mills pointed out.

The theory behind the program is the development of all sides of the children's personality.

"The program looks upon the child as a distinct personality, a distinct individual," Mr. Mills said. "His growth must be in

ROBBERY LIST MOUNTS TO 11

Mysterious Robber Wearing Burlap Sack Over Head Raids Filling Stations.

AT KENTON AND DUNKIRK

One Holdup Witnessed by Marion Men; One Victim Forced To Disrobe.

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., Oct. 15 — A mysterious "burlap sack" bandit who struck twice within little more than an hour last night at Hardin county filling stations and forced one of his victims to disrobe, was the object of a widespread police search today. Last night's robberies, which brought him loot of $50.48, were his tenth and eleventh in this district recently.

The bandit, who wears a sack over the top of his head and a white handkerchief over the lower part of his face, carried a sawed-off repeating shotgun in holding up Charles Hensel, 35, a filling station attendant at Dunkirk, whom he forced to undress, and Warren Heath, 22, attendant at a Kenton station.

Witnessed By Marion Men

Three Marion men were at the Kenton station when the bandit appeared but they were not bothered. They were John Stratun of 177 Olney avenue, Edgar Coffey of 720 Bonnett street and William Egnor of 144 Hattie avenue.

The Marion men and the attendant all described the bandit as about five feet, eight inches tall, weighing approximately 180 pounds, wearing a dark zipper jacket and white canvas gloves.

The masked bandit has also perpetrated similar robberies in Allen and Wood counties, The Associated Press reported. In some instances victims reported he took their shoes to slow up pursuit, but last night's disrobing of Hensel was the first of its kind.

State highway patrolmen, informed by a shortwave broadcast from Sheriff Lloyd Norman of Hardin county of the latest holdups were joining today in spreading a police net for the robber.

First Call at Dunkirk

The hooded gunman first appeared at 10 o'clock last night at a Standard Oil Co. station at Dunkirk, leased by Ray Woods and Charles Hensel, the latter being on duty at the time. Hensel, as did Heath at Kenton later, said he thought the bandit was a Hallowe'en prankster in costume.

Sensing that his intended victim did not realize his true character, the bandit discharged his shotgun. He shot into a chair at Dunkirk, knocking it over, and at Kenton fired into the floor.

At Dunkirk he ordered Hensel to undress, presumably to cut off all chances of pursuit, then took the clothing and hung it on a picket fence nearby. He obtained $37 from the cash register and $3 from a pocketbook which Hensel produced on demand, but overlooked another containing $177 which Hensel intentionally neglected to produce from his clothing before undressing.

As the robber left, Hensel shouted for help and a man whose name was not learned obtained his clothing from the fence. The sheriff was notified immediately.

Arrives in Kenton

At 11:15 slightly more than an hour after robbing the Dunkirk station, the hooded bandit appeared at the Standard Oil Co. station at Kenton, leased by Leonard Moore. Heath, the attendant, and the three Marion men were present. He fired into the floor to quiet thoughts of resistance and rifled the cash register, obtaining $7.48.

The mysteriousness of the bandit is heightened by the fact that it is not known how he travels from place to place. None of the victims heard an automobile start.

MARION INDUSTRY HEAD FOUND DEAD

Frank C. Parrett, President of Baker Wood Preserving Co., Stricken Suddenly.

Frank C. Parrett, 55, president of the Baker Wood Preserving Co., was found dead in his room at Hotel Harding this morning. Death was due to a heart attack, Dr. M. F. Axthelm, county coroner, said.

Mr. Parrett was alone when stricken and his body was not found until nearly 11 o'clock. The discovery was made by a hotel employe who heard water running in the bathroom of Mr. Parrett's room. When the employe entered the room to investigate he was found dead on the floor.

Aids of Mr. Parrett at the wood preserving company plant on the Silver street extension said today that he had not complained of illness. Hotel employes reported that he came down to the coffee shop for breakfast this morning about 8 o'clock, the usual hour. After eating he returned to his room and was not seen again until found in his room. It is thought he was preparing to leave for his office when stricken. Dr. Axthelm said death had occurred a short time before the body was discovered.

Mr. Parrett came to Marion in January 1936 when the wood preserving company began the construction of a new plant to replace the one in operation for a number of years at Washington C. H. Although he lived at the hotel here during the week it had been his custom to return over the week-

State Ordered To Pay County Sales Tax Fund

Temporary Injunction Granted in Action Over Debt Dispute; County To Receive $6,616 at Once.

Common Pleas Judge John King of Franklin county yesterday granted a temporary injunction to Marion county restraining the state auditor and finance director from withholding the county's share of sales tax revenue. His action followed a brief hearing at 2 p. m. in Columbus attended by Prosecuting Attorney Paul D. Michel and County Auditor Harry V. Mounts. The state was not represented at the hearing.

Mr. Michel said the entry was filed immediately after the hearing and that the order of the court will go to the state officials as soon as the county files a $1,000 surety bond which was to be sent to the court this morning. The bond was ordered filed pending a final hearing on Marion county's suit, which was started Oct. 4.

The suit is an outgrowth of a new state law authorizing the state to withhold the sales tax shares of counties which owe the state for hospitalization of county wards in state institutions. The state contends Marion county owes $57,420.20.

Main Issue Undecided

The question of the constitutionality of the new law, raised in the county's petition, was not decided yesterday and will be considered at the final hearing which may not come for some time, Mr. Michel said. The county contends the law grants to state officials the power properly belonging to the judiciary.

Mr. Mounts said the county probably will receive its October sales tax share of $6,616, which was withheld two weeks ago, within a few days. The temporary injunction will also require the state to distribute to the county all future sales tax shares until further order of the court, which probably will not come until the final hearing, Mr. Michel said.

Second Suit Filed

Marion county's suit is the second in the state, Franklin county having been granted temporary injunction several months ago. No final hearing has been held on the Franklin county petition and hence no blanket decision affecting all the counties of the state has been rendered. There are 44 other counties whose sales tax is being withheld.

Marion county based its request for a temporary injunction on the contention that withholding of the money would make it impossible for the county to carry out contracts entered into when budgets for various local subdivisions

MRS. HAHN ACCUSED OF USING RAT POISON

Prosecutor Says She Called Herself Niece To Win Money from Aged Man.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15 — The state undertook its case against Anna Marie Hahn, on trial on a first degree murder charge today, with an assertion by Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt that Jacob Wagner, 78, her alleged victim, "died of the administration of poison commonly used for rats."

Mrs. Hahn, comely 31-year-old blond, sat impassive as Outcalt told the jury in his opening statement that she "worked her way into his (Wagner's) confidence" and "had the audacity to call herself a niece," designing thereby "to enrich herself by exacting money" from the aged man.

Judge Charles S. Bell ordered the jury of eleven women and one man cleared from the room as Defense Counsel Joseph H. Hoodin entered an objection to Outcalt's declaration that "she became friendly with other old men."

Hoodin earlier withdrew a request that the jury be taken to visit Wagner's home.

During arguments which ensued after withdrawal of the jury, Outcalt shouted:

"This woman (Mrs. Hahn) killed so many men there isn't another human being like her on

OHIO ELEVATOR MEN AT SOY BEAN SCHOOL

Meeting at Hotel Marion Sponsored by Old Fort Mills.

A soy bean grading school for Ohio elevator operators and feed dealers was held today at Hotel Marion by Old Fort Mills, Inc., Marion soy bean processing and feed grinding concern. Today's session was the first of what is to become an annual event, officials of the company said. One hundred and fifty were expected to attend.

On the morning program were talks by P. Turner, president of Old Fort Mills, on price trends on feeds and feeding and by R. Turner, vice president, on merchandising.

The afternoon session was to be devoted to the soy bean grading school in charge of G. A. Holland, secretary and treasurer, with the assistance of L. C. Lindenberg, auditor of Old Fort Mills. Twenty-five samples of beans were to be graded and prizes given dealers who do the best job of grading.

Mr. Holland said the beans grown in Ohio this year have a low moisture content, coming in at the mill with between 12 and 15 per cent moisture content, a favorable range. The maximum content of moisture for No. 2 yellow bean without penalty is 15 per cent, he said. The crop compares favorably with last year when the moisture content ranged between 15 and 20 per cent, he said.

Other factors entering into the grading are foreign materials in the beans, damage, splits and presence of other grains mixed in with the beans.

Eight men from various parts of Ohio representing Old Fort Mills were among those attending the session.

DALHOVER PHILOSOPHICAL AS HE FACES LAST MILE

"It Was Pretty Good While It Lasted and Bad Ending Was To Be Expected," He Tells Jailers at Indianapolis.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15 — Indiana authorities hastened today to complete murder prosecution plans that may lead James Dalhover, lone survivor of the eradicated Brady gang, to the electric chair, but the alleged "trigger man" lolled in his cell here, apparently unconcerned over his fate.

He expressed his philosophy in these words, "although we were always on the run, it was pretty good while it lasted. Anybody who lived the life we did expected to be riddled with bullets, or end up like I did."

G-man bullets ended the depredations of his companions in crime, Al Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., in Bangor, Me., last Tuesday.

State Police Captain Walter Eckert and Michael Morrissey, Indianapolis police chief, indicated today the wishes of U. S. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and J. Edgar Hoover, federal bureau of investigation chief, would be learned before Dalhover was brought to trial on one or more of many charges against him.

Federal agents hinted they would keep custody of Dalhover

TWO MORE BRITONS SLAIN IN HOLYLAND WARFARE

Arabs Strike at Dawn with Bombs, Bullets and Dynamite in Renewal of Race Conflict.

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM, Oct. 15 — Guerrilla bands of Arabs struck new terror in the Holy Land today and two young British policemen fell in a pre-dawn ambush on the Bethlehem road.

Constables Norman Harrison and Austin Malia were added to the list of dead which already included four Arabs. Twelve Jews had been injured in the last two days.

Authorities were expected to declare a nightly curfew and possibly proclaim martial law unless British military moves brought order. One thing was certain—that the recent banishment of members of the Arab higher committee had not halted terrorism.

The guerrilla bands apparently were functioning in a well knit organization.

The old quarters of Jerusalem were blanketed with military detachments. All civilians were being searched for weapons.

The British constables were slain in a spectacular skirmish with a large band of armed Arabs.

Before dawn authorities learned of the concentration of an armed gang on the main road to Bethlehem near Solomon's pool and rushed four carloads of police to the scene.

FORD MAY QUIT STRUCK PLANT

"Intolerable" Situation as Result of Picketing at Kansas City.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Oct. 15 — The Ford Motor Co., charging that an "intolerable" situation had arisen because of the picketing of its Kansas City plant, indicated today that it was considering closing the plant permanently.

"I do not think there is anything to do but close the plant," said Norris H. Bennett, personnel director, "but that is up to the company. We can't get police protection. The Ford Motor Co. does not work that way. As far as I'm concerned—if I have anything to say about it—we're all through in Kansas City."

H. C. Doss, manager of the Kansas City plant, which has been picketed since Monday by the United Automobile Workers of America, and J. S. Bush, plant superintendent, were in Dearborn to confer with Ford officials.

A company statement said Doss had been refused entrance to his office at Kansas City except on a union pass.

"Kansas City police refused protection to any Ford official who did not hold a union pass," the statement said. "Regarding this condition as intolerable, the Ford Motor Co. withdrew its manager and plant superintendent."

The statement was issued after City Manager H. F. McElroy, of Kansas City, had telephoned assurance to Doss that any Ford executive or office worker could have access to the company's plant there.

Only maintenance men have been at work since Sept. 15 because of the change-over to 1938 model production. They were laid off Monday when picketing of the plant began and the other 3,000 employes were advised to find work elsewhere because re-opening plans were indefinite.

U. A. W. A. leaders described the circumstance as a lockout. Bennett said it was a dispute between "the C. I. O. and some other union."

Bennett indicated the Dallas (Tex.) plant might receive some of the work if the Kansas City plant was closed permanently.

Rosa's Ire Rises To Victory Over Off-Key Pianist

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA, Oct. 15—Rosa Ponselle's dramatic soprano voice rose and fell in Tschaikowsky's "Adieu Forets" as a hushed concert audience listened last night.

Suddenly the Metropolitan star interrupted the song and tossed back to her pianist, Stuart Ross, a hasty "you're on the wrong key."

But Ross replied in dulcet: "No, I'm not."

Then to the tensing audience Miss Ponselle said "excuse me, please" and consulted her accompanist.

After a swift glance at the music board of the piano she announced triumphantly: "You've got the contralto copy."

The audience joined her in laughter while Ross hurried backstage to retrieve the soprano score.

When he was a bit long on hunt, Miss Ponselle dropped her chin in hands, elbows on the piano top, crossed one foot over the other and patted the floor. A wave of laughter rolled over the audience.

Ross returned, resumed playing and the soprano finished her number—a la soprano.

The song over, the singer urged Ross to frontstage to take a bow, amid a vigorous ovation.

As he bent at the hips, she tweaked his ear.

ARMS EXPORTS AT 81 MILLIONS

Huge Sales in Two Years Hints at Battle To Tighten Neutrality Laws.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Prospects for a hard fight over neutrality legislation in the coming session of congress appeared today to have been increased by a state department report that it licensed $81,829,527 of munitions exports in the last two years.

Some of the legislators are prepared to contend the neutrality law should be tightened to prevent the United States shipping any arms abroad so long as this country is at peace.

Opposition Powerful

At present, the law forbids such shipments only to nations which President Roosevelt proclaims to be engaged in a foreign war.

Powerful forces in congress and out, stand ready to oppose a more general ban. Some military experts, for instance, contend foreign business is necessary to maintain American arms plants at the levels that would be required in wartime for national defense.

Their view is opposed by several members of the old senate munitions committee, who argue the advantage gained by foreign support of American plants is more than offset by the additional military power it places in foreign hands.

Only Spain, torn by civil warfare, is barred entirely at present from buying war implements in the United States.

THE CHARACTERS

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair, has fallen in love with her stepfather.

Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, pays considerable attention to Nina.

Honey, Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, is crazy about her new husband.

David, a young auto salesman, crashed a party, met Nina and lost his heart.

Cordelia is Nina's closest friend.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"You're Bad For Me"

RICHARD made cocktails, as a chemist mixes a formula... slowly, and with deliberation. They might not have been so very much better than an expertly thrown together drink, but it created an atmosphere.

"There," he said at last, lifting his glass of amber fluid to the light. "A votre sante...ma belle."

He looked at her steadily as he drank.

"You know, Nina," he came and sat beside her on one of the love-seats; "you shouldn't send young men out into the night with heaven in their eyes...unless..."

"Unless what?"

"Unless you mean what you say. Why is that chap 'good for you,' Nina?...You don't want him."

She flushed.

"So! You were listening."

"I...overheard. Why," he persisted, "is he 'good for you'?"

"Why," she countered, "don't you think I want him?"

He smiled slowly. "Well, I don't think I'll tell you why, just yet, but I'm—quite—certain, my dear. Now, will you answer my question?"

Nina put her glass down, because it was shaking.

"He's so sort of...oh, I don't know, natural and wholesome, I suppose you'd call it,...and just mad enough to be entertaining."

Richard was still smiling as he said: "You know, Nina...I think I could be—most awfully—good for you, too."

She said, quickly, softly: "You're bad for me," and could have bitten her tongue.

He took her hand, and traced with his finger, a little blue vein at her wrist, to where it disappeared up under the lace cuff.

He didn't say anything...which was much worse than if he had said a lot. He chose to leave her little, impulsive remark sizzling in the air, between them. The longer they kept silent, the larger it grew.

"I'll have another," said Nina at last, just to say—something. But when he brought her a fresh drink, she couldn't touch it.

He began to talk then, pointedly, of other things...the way people do, when there is something to be covered up. It didn't occur to her, that he might be doing it on purpose...only that he was trying to help her out.

The room was full of it. Even the old English clock in the corner ticked it out relentlessly: "You're bad for me. You're bad for me." Nina felt that it might just as well have spilled the whole works: "You're bad for me because I love you, and I shouldn't!"

Where were her wits? She felt that if she couldn't think of some way to un-say it, she would go mad.

When Honey came in, a few minutes later, she had an idea.

"Hello, angel. You look divine ...I was just telling your husband here, that he's bad for me. I'd already had my share of cocktails, and he comes along and forces more on me."

But when she glanced at Richard, she remembered the old adage about letting well enough alone. He was looking frightfully amused.

He said: "Well, now, that rather takes the wind out of my sails! You see, I was holding her hand, Honey, and I thought she meant that."

He went out to finish dressing.

"Oh, Nina darling!"

"Coming, Honey..."

Honey began giving her directions before Nina was half-way down the stairs from her room on the third floor.

Fasten these back garters, will you, like a lamb? I can hardly breathe, let alone bend, in this new girdle. Marie has disappeared, as usual, just when I need her."

Honey was standing, a plump, pink cherub, in the middle of her ornate room.

"And, darling, open the wall safe, will you? I never can think of the combination when I'm in a hurry...oh, and that reminds me, hand me my combination, will you, Nina?...that white one. Richard will be out of his dressing room in a minute. He has no idea how fat I really am, and I don't want him to."

"Darling, you're adorable. Just right."

"And be an angel and powder my back..."

"Surely. What dress are you wearing?"

Richard called out from his dressing room.

"That you, Nina?"

Instinctively, she drew her negligee closer about her.

"Uh-hm. Want something?"

"Yes. Button this stiff shirt up the back for me, will you?....I say, Honey, let's sack Marie and hire Nina. That Frenchwoman's fingers are always cold."

Nina knocked on his door and went in...leaving it open.

"How do you know? Does she dress you every evening too?"

He was standing before a long mirror, chin up, tying his white tie; but when she came in, in her trailing chiffon, he looked at her in the glass, and let his hands drop.

Somehow, with shaking fingers, she managed to fasten the two buttons at the back.

He smelled of freshly laundered linen, and an expensive soap, and eau-de-Cologne or powder or something he had patted on to his cheeks.

When she had finished, he swung around and took her two hands in his.

"Thank you...sweet thing," he said softly, and pressed her palms against his face, for a moment.

Over his shoulder, in the mirror, Nina could see her mother putting things into her evening bag.

"My powder, my lipstick, my hankie...there!"

"Going, Nina? Hold on a second, will you, while I get my coat? Honey dear, I want to leave that Francotte 12 gauge of mine down at Abercrombie's. The forearm needs repairing...Nina can drop me off."

"I'm only going to Bergdorf's on 57th street..."

"Then I'll drop you...By, sweetheart."

Richard stepped over to Honey and whispered a little endearing something that brought the quick color to her cheeks.

Outside, in the taxi, he drew Nina's arm through his.

"Well, now perhaps you'll explain why you've been avoiding me lately. Things have come to a pretty pass, when I have to invent an errand to be alone with you!"

That was right...where was the gun he was going to have repaired?

Nina felt first hot and then cold.

"You know, Honey, Nina's slacking up in her duties as a daughter. She hasn't shown up for breakfast for the last two mornings. I'm being neglected."

"Nina, darling, haven't you felt well?"

"Just lazy, I guess."

"Well, I warn you, child, if you don't show up tomorrow, I'll bring my coffee up to your room. Honey sleeps like a lazy rabbit and I refuse to eat alone."

"Richard!"

"I warned you, didn't I? Move your feet over. Do you object if people sit on the foot of your bed?"

David said: "You look tired, beautiful Nina. Why?"

"I don't know."

"I do. You don't know enough poor young men, who can't afford to keep you out late of nights."

"Is that it?"

"Um-m-m. You'd better let me take charge."

They were in the comfortable loge chairs at the Capitol theater, and he would have her know it was a very—large—evening.

It was fun doing simple, slightly prosaic things with David. He never let them seem too simple ...or at all prosaic, really. They walked in the park, once or twice with the bounding Button, in the late afternoons; and once he took her back for, what he called, a Blue Blazer, in his "apartment just off Park."

The "apartment" was a poorly disguised bed-sitting room, and "just off Park" meant Lexington. Nina supposed, vaguely, that she shouldn't have gone, and she was quite sure that she would again, if he asked her.

She clung, rather feverishly, these days to his friendship; and the fact that it wasn't friendship at all on his part any longer, failed to trouble her. She had too much else on her mind.

When she was with David, she was in a different world. Cordelia had just met him the night of her Montmarte party. Richard had just seen him going out the door. Nobody else knew that he existed. She was glad. She wanted to keep him separate—not connected in the faintest way with a world that had her stepfather in it.

Increased Infant Population Indicates Babies Thrive in War-Torn Madrid

Anxious but healthy are these war babies of Madrid.

BY CHARLES P. NUTTER
Associated Press Foreign Service Writer

MADRID, Oct. 15—Babies born amid shell fire in this war-torn capital thrive under the hectic conditions. Madrid has more babies under a year old now than it did in normal times.

The birth rate has declined somewhat, but the infant mortality rate has declined much more, due to wartime health and protection measures, officials explain.

Fifty Births a Day

More than 50 infants are born here every day now. Since the outbreak of civil war July 18, 1936, 22,200 babies have been born at an average rate of 1,600 monthly. The normal birthrate was 7,750 monthly.

The decline is explained by the emphasis put on evacuation of expectant mothers, thousands of whom are housed in nursing homes in less dangerous areas.

But while infant mortality was 28 deaths in a thousand annually in pre-war days, it has been reduced to 18 or 20 a thousand now.

All children under five years old have been placed under supervision of the institute of child care, with state feedings and regular medical attention.

Doctor Juan Jose Carvajal, director of this institute, estimates there are 60,000 such children in Madrid.

Plans To Extend Care

The institute maintains 50 food centers and 22 clinics. Although a second long winter of reduced food and no heat is inevitable, Dr. Carvajal not only expects to care for the 60,000 but he also hopes to extend his care to children under 10.

These children consume almost all the milk coming into the besieged city. Only about 30 per cent of the city's normal supply of milk is being produced.

Before the war Madrid drank 70,000 litres of milk daily, which has now been reduced to 15,000 litres daily.

It is difficult to maintain balanced diets because of limited supplies and lack of variety and greenstuffs. Carvajal's institute gets first choice on incoming food.

Madrid's war babies face no prospect of clothing shortage because stores are stocked high and children's clothes still sell at normal prices.

BABIES ARRIVING TOO FAST FOR RUSSIA

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Oct. 15—Babies are being born so fast in the Soviet Union that authorities scarcely know how to care for them.

Divorce, on the other hand, is declining.

This situation has resulted from the reversal of the early policy of legal abortions and easy divorce.

The jump in the birthrate has outstripped the hospital building program. Clubs and other institutions were pressed into service as lyin-in homes.

In Moscow and Leningrad the birthrate has more than doubled in a year.

Moscow is expected to register 150,000 births this year in a population of 3,500,000. Leningrad expects nearly 100,000 among its 2,800,000 inhabitants. In the first eight months 65,627 babies were born there.

Divorce statistics are scarce, but figures from Leningrad are typical. Only 3,860 couples were divorced in the first six months of this year, as against 10,313 in the corresponding period of 1936. The drop was even more pronounced in Leningrad province—1,504 this year, 5,432 last year.

China, which began mining and smelting iron ore 2,500 years ago, will attempt to develop a steel industry under the supervision and encouragement of the national government.

SILICOSIS DAMAGE SUIT IS APPEALED

William Smith Carries $40,000 Action Against Marion Company to District Court.

William Smith, former employe of the Marion Brass & Bronze Co., yesterday carried to the Third district court of appeals his suit for $40,000 damages against Richard A. Lau, operator of the company. Smith, represented by Attorney Paul D. Smith and Dr. Thomas H. Sutherland, claims a common law right to sue for damages for silicosis which he contends he contracted while working at the company.

Judge Hector S. Young recently dismissed the action by sustaining a demurrer to Smith's petition filed by the company on the grounds the petition did not state a cause of action.

In a brief filed with the appeal, which is on questions of law, Smith's attorneys assert that by filing the demurrer the company admitted the truth of the allegations contained in the petition. According to law when a defendant demurs to a petition he admits the truth of the petition but questions the sufficiency of the facts contained in it, attorneys said.

The petition alleges the company was negligent in failure to provide proper safety devices required by law and that as a result Smith contracted silicosis.

Guthery & Guthery represent the company. The suit is one of several which have been filed here for silicosis damages totaling nearly $1,000,000.

Action Dismissed

Judge Hector S. Young in common pleas court has dismissed the action of Kathleen B. Welch against George W. Conklin and others for termination and annulment of a contract to sell real estate. Bartram & Bartram represented the plaintiff.

Divorce Actions

Petition filed—Walter Edwin Cover against Martha M. Cover, grounds of gross neglect, divorce and custody of child asked. J. W. Jacoby, plaintiff's counsel.

Motion filed—By Eartha Ellen Green in her suit against Travis Harold Green. She asks injunction to restrain him from molesting her. Her divorce suit is based on grounds of extreme cruelty. Carhart, Warner & Carhart attorneys for plaintiff.

Report Approved

Approving the report of the receiver which includes an expenditure of $2.08 for purchase of locks for closing the LaMar restaurant on West Center street, Judge Hector S. Young in common pleas court yesterday dismissed the action of Carmello Rizzo against his partner, Alex Lambrose, for dissolution of partnership in the restaurant. The purchase of locks was one of two expenditures, the other being for $24.25 for labor. Receipts handled by the receiver, James E. Reed, totaled $25.19, which compared with expenditures of $26.23, leaving $1.14 owing to the receiver. J. Wilbur Jacoby is attorney for the plaintiff.

Sale Permit Asked

T. E. Drake, administrator of the estate of Susan J. Akron of Prospect, petitioned yesterday in probate court to sell lot No. 296 in Davis' second addition to Prospect, valued at $500, to settle debts of the estate. Alfred H. Donithen is attorney.

IT'S ODD
But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

PASADENA, Calif.—It appears that science won't be able to grow giants, either plant or animal, until they discover one of nature's greatest unknowns—the "limiting factor."

This means the force or condition that limits growth. New examples of this limit are reported in the proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences by James Bonner and Grice Axtman of the California Institute of Technology.

They removed the embryonic plants from the seeds of perfection peas. The tiny plants were then made to grow in sterile solutions, distilled water mixed with salts.

Vitamin B (one), which helps in the growth of humans, also speeded the growth of these pea plants when added to their food. Another of man's life essentials, vitamin C, also made the peas grow bigger.

Two other chimicals had similar growing powers. One was folliculin, an essential of the sex cycle of women. Another was pantothenic acid, a new discovery.

But adding all of these together did nothing more toward growth than one of them alone. Nature seemed to be able to get "enough" with any one, and after that there was no effect. No clue was found to the "limiting factor," which stopped these perfection peas after they had reached "normal" size.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Convinces Dicky She Ought To See Veritzen

HAD won my point. I knew by a certain nuance of voice, even though his words evinced his grievance at what he termed Philip Veritzen's arrogance, and also resented irritation at my persistence. But I cared nothing for either in view of the fact that I was sure Dicky would stop at Philip Veritzen's hotel, if only I could be tactful enough to keep from angering him afresh.

"I'm not 'determined' to do anything," I said meekly, "and I resent Mr. Veritzen's arrogance as much as you do. Yet, some way, I don't believe he means to be arrogant this time, although he does sound that way. But if we'd received such a message from almost anybody else, couched in the same words, we wouldn't have thought anything of it."

For Mary's Sake

I was careful to associate myself with Dicky in my speech, knowing that nothing so infuriates him as telling him what I think his reaction is on any subject.

"You may be right," Dicky conceded, "although I don't believe anybody in the world, save an ex-emperor or a present dictator, would say it that way. But you're sure you want to stop and see that old goat?"

"It isn't a question of what I want to do," I explained patiently, "I could bear up beautifully if I never had to see or hear the 'old goat' again. But we've committed ourselves to a certain course because of Mary, and therefore I think we ought to stop and find out what he wants."

Dicky Finally Yields

"Oh, all right," Dicky said ungraciously, but with swift yielding of the point. "However, remember you're the passenger, and I'm only the chauffeur, when we stage this interview."

"Whatever you say," I replied meekly, knowing that by the time we reached the hotel, he would have forgotten his choler, and would treat Philip Veritzen with his usual meticulous courtesy.

Dicky laughed shortly.

"Patient Griselda in the flesh," he mocked, and did not speak again until we reached the village which held the hospital in which Queen Olga was convalescing, and the hotel where Philip Veritzen kept open house for his son and daughter-in-law and Princess Olina.

"D'ye know where the hotel is?" he asked. "When I brought Mary down that day, she wouldn't let me take the car to the hotel for fear Olina might see me, and inadvertently speak out of turn to darling old Phil. But you were here, weren't you?"

Reach Hotel

"Yes," I returned promptly. "And I'm sure I know just where it is. If you'll turn right at the next corner—"

"And then left at the old red barn, and jog right by the city hall," Dicky gibed, and I knew that he was restored to good humor again.

It was a good humor proof against several jogs of the very kind he had described, but we finally drew up in the parking space of the hotel.

"Here we are!" he said. "Now to sound the horn and demand that the drawbridge be lowered."

"Dicky!" I said hesitatingly, and stopped.

He turned and looked at me quizzically.

"Now what?" he asked.

Madge Has Plan

"I don't want to go into the hotel," I said. "While Mary has told him Lillian and I went to the hospital, she may not have thought it wise to tell him about our previous call here, the conference to which she summoned me. She has reason to believe that the elevator men are in Phil's employ."

"Probably everybody in the hotel, from the porter to the proprietor," Dicky interjected cynically.

"And while she staged things very cleverly the day we came, so that we appeared casual and unexpected visitors, I don't want that elevator man to see me again."

"It's a far-fetched point, but I fancy you're right, at that," Dicky said grudgingly, "but I don't see how you're going to manage it."

"Couldn't you say that I gave my knee or my foot a nasty wrench last night, and while it has been properly bandaged, and doesn't promise to be serious, yet I do not like getting in and out of cars? I'm sure he'll immediately offer to come out to the car to see me."

New Produce Shipments Supply Marion Market

Supplies of homegrown produce have been virtually cut to nothing by the first prolonged cold fall weather of the year in the last week, dealers reported today. In their stead have come stocks of southern and western foodstuffs which will continue well into next year.

Idaho baking potatoes are plentiful and reasonable these days. According to statistical reports received here the Idaho crop will show an increase of 5,000,000 bushels over the 1926 yield.

The first supplies of Maryland string beans are due to arrive here shortly, dealers said. These are of an especially good quality and retail at fairly reasonable prices.

Others on List

Other vegetables on the current list are beets, cabbage, carrots, celery, iceberg lettuce, mushrooms, onions, pumpkin, white and sweet potatoes, squash, spinach and tomatoes.

The seasonal supplies of delicacies are beginning to appear, dealers report. The first shipments of new dates, which are being sold in bulk, lead the list. Various kinds of nuts are also being offered—Brazils, pecans, English walnut meats, domestic and foreign chestnuts. Cranberries are now well into season and grapes of red colors, red, white and blue, are on the shelves.

Apples continue to be the most plentiful in recent years. Dealers throughout the city have their shelves lined with baskets of numerous varieties, which, because of their abundance are relatively inexpensive this year. Grapefruit is again regularly in the market, with large supplies coming from Florida. Melons can still be had.

Pineapples Plentiful

A record crop of pineapples in Hawaii is reported for this year. Among the first shipments to this country was one of 186,000 cases which literally clogged an entire pier at New York an unusual occurrence.

Oysters are expected to appear in greater abundance now that cool weather apparently has set on to stay for a while. Fish, also, is more plentiful this week, dealers reported.

NEW COLLEGE HEAD

DR. C. E. JOSEPHSON

HEIDELBERG MAKES INAUGURATION PLANS

Dr. Josephson, Son of Backwoods Minister, To Take Office Oct. 23.

Special to The Star

TIFFIN, O., Oct. 15—Dr. Clarence E. Josephson will be inaugurated at 10 a. m., Saturday, Oct. 23 as the seventh president of 87-year-old Heidelberg college.

More than 100 college presidents, deans, and other prominent educators, and several hundred alumni and friends of the college will attend the inauguration, which will be the major event of the annual alumni Homecoming week-end.

Born in Milan, Minn., March 11, 1897, Dr. Josephson had already made himself successful in two careers, business and the ministry, when he was selected last spring as the new president of Heidelberg college.

The son of a struggling backwoods minister, he worked his way through high school and the University of Wisconsin, then postponed his long cherished desire to enter the ministry in order that he might earn money to educate his younger brothers and sisters.

He was in an army officers training camp when the armistice was signed, and after a period of government service served 10 years with the Aluminum Company of America, working his way from an elementary clerkship to the post of sales manager for the Cleveland area. By that time he saw his way clear to realize his boyhood desire to enter the ministry, and he enrolled in Union Theological seminary. He served first as pastor of a Congregational church in Scarsdale, N. Y., and was pastor of the First Congregational church in Passaic, N. J., when called to the presidency of Heidelberg college.

BOASTS OF TALLEST WEED

By International News Service

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Hoosier farmers boast of their crops, particularly Iowans, but Mrs. May, who lives near here believes he has discovered the tallest weeds in the world. The giant weed was recently measured at 14 feet 6 inches, is of the species, known variously as "wild lettuce" and "butterweed." But this weed would be growing yet if I hadn't cut it," May said.

A lack of vitamin A in the diet of a child leads to certain disorders of the eyes. In adults it may result in a lowering of the resistance of the body, with disorders of the eyes. Such diseases as pellagra, as well as many disturbances of the skin, are caused by the lack of vitamin B. A deficiency in vitamin C will lead to the disease known as scurvy, not common now as compared to the old times.

Most persons are familiar with the fact that a lack of vitamin D in the diet will cause rickets. This was an extremely common disease in Europe and America until very recent years. Although it was not a fatal disease, it often caused marked deformities of the extremities, ribs, and other bones.

The disease has been made to disappear by the universal use of cod liver oil. Today, in a large city such as New York, even among Negro children who are unusually susceptible to rickets, the disease has been controlled.

The diet of the infant and child can be so regulated as to prevent these vitamin deficiency disorders. They are preventable diseases, easily controlled. Certain constitutional disorders of adult life can be prevented when the diet is varied and rich in vitamins and mineral salts.

ST. LOUIS — Flowers taller than a man were reported encountered by Paul Allen, manager of the tropical station of the Missouri Bontonical Gardens at Balboa, Canal Zone, on his return from an expedition into the interior.

The specimen was an Aristolochi, which Allen described as the largest he had ever seen.

"In all truth," he said, "this plant had a flower measuring 7 feet 8 inches from the top of the flower to the tail."

ROAD MARKING AIMS AT SAFETY

Double White Lines Not To Be Crossed To Avoid Crashes on Curves.

By United Press

COLUMBUS.—The state highway department will attempt to educate Ohio motorists to more cautious motoring through a new and simple method of highway danger markings.

By the simple warning, "Don't Cross the Double White Lines—Danger," the highway department explains its new traffic warning program which it is completing on all main routes.

The lines have been applied on all pavements 18 feet or more in width where there is limited visibility on curves, turns, and at crests of grades; on center lines of four-lane pavements, at approaches to railroad grade crossings and at approaches to intersections.

A study of reports of accidents on state highways outside municipalities by the traffic division of the state highway department showed that for the first half of 1937 accident frequency was especially high on curves and turns, at intersections and on hills. Approximately 45 per cent of the 3,946 accidents reported for the first six months of this year occured at this type of danger point.

Motorists were warned never to cross over the double center lines, as they mark stretches of road where it is especially hazardous to attempt to overtake and pass the car ahead. On certain sections of highway, dashed white lines are used which may be crossed with caution but safety requires that traffic always keep to the right of double center lines, Highway Director John Jaster Jr., said.

"Double white center lines," Jaster said," are a plain warning to motorists not to cross and thus endanger their own and the lives of others traveling the highways.

"If motorists obey the markings and stay on their own side of the line, not attempting to overtake and pass vehicles ahead, an appreciable reduction in automobile collisions is bound to result."

CITY AIMS TO CUT MATERNITY TOLL

Medical Council Maps Plan to Reduce Deaths

By United Press

BUFFALO, N. Y. — The Erie County Medical society has organized a special group in an effort to curb the high maternity death rate in Buffalo.

The new group—known as the Obstetrical Council—was formed to carry out the following four-point program:

1. To carry on statistical and educational work in an effort to reduce the number of deaths due to childbirth and to improve obstetrical practice.

2. To stress the public's responsibility on minimum standards of prenatal and postnatal care.

3. To provide a source of authoritative information on obstetries to social agencies and to the community.

4. To promote better hospitalization methods.

Organization of the new group followed a report by a special committee which conducted a year study of the morality toll among mothers.

According to the report, the chief dangers to mothers involving childbirth include the failure of patients to co-operate with their physicans and failure of patients to obtain prenatal care.

Central Clinches Share of City Junior High Title

SCORES 33 TO 0 WIN OVER EDISON SQUAD; 3RD VICTORY IN ROW

Gerald Strauss, Fullback, Heavy Scorer for Uptown Team in Thursday Tilt.

Central Junior High gridders yesterday afternoon assured themselves of at least a share in the 1937 city championship by handing the lighter and less-experienced Thomas A. Edison team a 33 to 0 defeat at the Harding stadium.

Central's victory was its third of the current season and with but one more game to be played the team can finish no lower than in a tie for the current city title. The victorious aggregation, supported by a large group of enthusiastic followers had little difficulty in running up the heavy score against the West Side club.

Gerald Strauss, Central fullback, was the star of the Hoffman-coached eleven. The powerful back chased over three touchdowns and was in on the plays that netted his team the trio of extra points. Right Halfback Creasap and substitute Harvey cashed in on Central's other pair of scoring chances, Creasap scoring on a 5-yard run around the end of the line and Harvey recovering an Edison fumble behind the goal line.

Central scored twice in the opening period, inaugurating the first touchdown drive after receiving the initial kick-off. Strauss went over on a short plunge for the score and added the extra point on a line play. Regaining possession of the ball on their own 40-yard line following the kick-off, Central players put on a power drive to score when Strauss plunged through from the five-yard line. Strauss kicked from placement to give his team a 13 to 0 lead at the end of the quarter.

Central's wide-awake team recovered a fumble on the Edison 25-yard line to set up the scoring play that gave it the first touchdown of the second period. Creasap chased through a broken field to score standing up on a 25-yard run. Strauss passed to Kemmerly to gain the extra point. The uptown team added another touchdown with little trouble on the following kick-off to Edison. After an Edison player touched the oval and it rolled over the West Siders goal line, Harvey pounced on it for a touchdown. The kick for the extra point was wide of the uprights. Central held a 26 to 0 lead at halftime.

The teams failed to score in the third period and the Hoffman aggregation opened its big offensive guns in the final quarter to add another touchdown and extra point to its scoring column. Strauss set up the final stanza scoring play by intercepting a pass on the Edison 17-yard line. After a series of line plays Strauss scored from the four-yard marker and booted the extra point to run Central's total to 33 points.

The line-ups follow:

The reason Doc Sutherland and other big league scouts spend their summers in the Ohio valley is such guys as Pitt's Marshall Goldberg, Notre Dame's Lou Zontini and Tennessee's George Cafego and Sam Bartholomew, all of whom came out of that section....Ace of the present crop is Alvin Thacker, 190-pounder, who scored 13 touchdowns for Charleston's East Bank High school in the first four games of the season....Pitt wants him—so do a lot of others....Get in that line to the right, gents.

The only National League manager who didn't wire Bill McKechnie congratulations on landing that fat $22,500-per Cincinnati job was Pie Traynor of the Pirates....Pie and Bill aren't talking any more, and good old Bill is all cut up about it....Trouble started when the Bees sent Berger to the Giants for Frank Gabler and $250,000....Traynor wanted Berger....Bill says he tried to get in touch with Pirate officials before the deal was made, but no dice....Anyway, Traynor doesn't drop around to the Boston dressing room after the game any more....

BIG TEN SPOTLIGHT ON MINNESOTA AT MICHIGAN SATURDAY

Three-Year Winning Cycle May Strike Snag in Tilt at Ann Arbor.

By EARL HILLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Minnesota's football machine hits the crossroads tomorrow.

After roaring mightily down the gridiron trail for three seasons, the Golden Gophers head into a game which may signal the end of a brilliant winning cycle—or reestablish the puzzling Bernie Bierman aggregation as one of the nation's feared elevens. The Gophers oppose Michigan at Ann Arbor and will be battling for far more than retention of the traditionally famous "little brown jug."

The Minnesota squad of 36 players, all extremely serious minded about tomorrow's battle with the improving Wolverines, worked out today at Jackson, Mich., and will remain there overnight. They felt this is the game they have to win to make their season potentially comparable to those of the past three years.

Michigan ended strenuous drill with a workout that did not please Coach Harry Kipke, who said the squad "just didn't know its plays." There was a feeling in the Michigan camp, however, that the Wolverines were ready for their best game of the year.

A crowd surpassing the one-of 68,000 which saw the Michigan-Michigan State game is expected to watch the scrap, in which Michigan will be battling to prevent Minnesota from becoming the first Big Ten school ever to win four straight games from a Wolverine eleven.

Northwestern will entertain Purdue, and Coach Lynn Waldorf of the champion Wildcats was admittedly worried about the

Mute Wrestler To Tangle with Chicagoan Monday

Silent Rattan of Kansas City will meet Chicago's Dale Haddock and Lefty Pacer of New York City will tangle with Jimmy Spencer of Boston in the pair of 90-minute headline bouts scheduled for meeting of the grunt and groan artists, Monday night at the Marion Steam Shovel arena.

Of the foursome, the Bostonian is the only one who has appeared here within recent weeks. Spencer took part in a scrappy 20-minute match three weeks ago against the aggressive Charlie Carr of Little Rock, Ark. The Boston boy, a rough and tough customer, towers above the six-foot mark and full of the nasty tricks that usually gets his type of a grappler into trouble with the crowd.

New Yorker Speedy

Spencer will need all of his energies to keep up with the fast moving New York youth, who last week wrestled a 20-minute draw with Prince Nihalikes of Arabia. The boys will go into the ring on even terms, unless Spencer should carry a slight advantage by virtue of his unusually rough treatment of an opponent.

Fans may expect plenty of the choking, eye gouging and hair pulling that usually makes for a riotous bout when the Bostonian gets warmed up. How far he may go with his rough tactics depends largely on the disposition of Verne Griffiths, who likely will be the third man in the ring. Griffiths has earned considerable favor in the circle of Marion mat-goers, who like his fearsome handling of the puguglies. A wrestler himself, Griffiths resorts to hair pulling when the occasion demands to break the combatants. He has been inactive on the mat because of an injury to his knee suffered some months ago in a western bout.

The return of Silent Rattan, only mute wrestler ever to appear here, should be widely heralded among those who enjoy clean, fast tangling. The Silent one, who visited the Marion ring often during the summer months, comes back after a successful trek through the east. Rattan will clash with a comparatively newcomer in facing Chicago's Dale Haddock.

Both Heavyweights

Both of the main go artists weigh in the neighborhood of 180 to 185 pounds, with the Silent one likely to give only a few pounds advantage.

The Chicagoan is the product of the late Adam Weismuller of Detroit, widely known mat trainer. Weismuller's products have gained recognition in far corners of the mat world, among those who have been here are Jackie Nichols, the Florida chin-spin artist and Blond Bobby Wagner. He also trained Ali Baba, the heavyweight mangler who carried the monicker of the Terrible Turk.

The Pacer-Spencer bout will be the first of the pair of spotlighted melees, with Rattan and Haddock clashing in the scrap which will ring down the curtain on the Monday night program. A 20-minute preliminary between contestants whose names have not yet been announced will complete the card. The prelim will start at 8:30 o'clock.

SCHOOLS THAT MET IN 1873 TO CLASH

By International News Service

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15—For the eighth time since gridiron relations between Pennsylvania and Columbia started the Red and Blue will invade New York next Saturday afternoon to engage Lou Little's light blue eleven on Baker Field.

The series between the two rivals in every sport on the athletic curriculum started back in 1873 when a game was played on a field in Hoboken. Neither squad had a coach that year and the game was played with 15 men on a side with the captain of each team acting as the mentor. The opening game of the series marked the twenty-ninth contest in Columbia's history.

M'KECHNIE OUTLINES PROGRAM FOR REDS

New Pilot To Get $25.000 a Year with Chance for $5.000 Bonus.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15—Bill McKechnie, newly-named manager of the Cincinnati Reds, scanned a two years $50,000 contract today, warned fans of the last-place club they should "expect" no miracles and announced that "any trades will have to be good ones."

'If hard work and ability mean anything,' he said, 'then I know I will earn my money."

General Manager Warren Giles who headed the Rochester, N. Y., International loop club during McKechnie's tenure as pilot there said that with a $25,000 annual salary and $5,000 annual bonus—the diminutive Pennsylvanian was the third highest-paid manager in the big leagues. He named Bill Terry of the Giants and Joe McCarthy of the Yankees.

The bonus will be paid, Giles said, if the Reds' 1938 home attendance keeps pace with their three-year average of 450,000, or if the club goes into the first division.

Powel Crosley Jr., president of the club told city officials, club directors and newspapermen gathered at a luncheon that the Reds would continue to spend money—"big money"—for players of the right kind.

"But there's no hurry," suggested McKechnie, 'because every deal must be a good one, and dealing-time doesn't expire until June 15."

O. S. U., WILBERFORCE ONLY IDLE TEAMS; BUCKEYES RESTING

B.-W.-Reserve, Miami-Ohio U. Contests Among Headliners on State Schedule

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—A 21-game program topped by contests in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Athens, was on the menu for Ohio's collegiate football fans this week-end with Ohio State and Wilberforce the only idle teams.

The Bucks, faced by an open date, rested up for next week's clash with Northwestern while Wilberforce and Tuskegee cancelled their tilt at Chicago because of a scarcity of gate receipts.

The three 'big' games come up Saturday afternoon Western Reserve tossing its 26-game undefeated streak on the block against Baldwin-Wallace at Cleveland. Xavier clashing with West Virginia at Cincinnati and Miami and Ohio university, 1936 co-champions of the Buckeye loop scrapping it out at Athens.

Scattered over a wide area are the other 18 contests, but none carries the state-wide interest attracted by the three-top-flight events. One other Buckeye game: Marshall and Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware, is on the slate, along with seven Ohio conference fray.

In the Ohio loop Wittenberg plays Marietta, the defending champion and Ashland goes to Findlay in Friday night games. The Saturday contests in the league take Heidelberg to Ohio Northern, Muskingum's undefeated team to Denison Otterbein to Mount Union, Kent State to Wooster and Capital to Bowling Green.

Bluffton goes to Kalamazoo Mich. and Dayton to Cleveland for a tough contest with John Carroll Friday night while New River State at Rio Grande winds up the Friday slate with an afternoon affair.

Other Saturday clashes are Case at Cincinnati, Akron at Toledo, Hiram at Allegheny, Oberlin at Hamilton, Betrany at Kenyon, Defiance at St. Marys and Alfred Holbrook at Morehead State.

strength of the invading Boilermakers. Four Northwestern line regulars still nurse bruises suffered against Michigan but will start Saturday. The Purdue squad of 35 players worked out at Evanston today. Coach Mal Edward said he would start the same combination that began the Carnegie Tech game last Saturday. Some 40,000 fans may see the battle.

Coach Bo McMillin sent his Indiana squad through a brisk passing drill as a final tuneup for the invading Illinois eleven. Coach Bob Zuppke of the Illini was far from pleased with the showing of his regulars in their final workout against freshmen equipped with Hoosier plays.

Iowa, after a final light signal drill, heared for Madison to give Wisconsin's promising Badgers their first severe test of the campaign. Both Hawkeyes and Badgers were in good shape and will put on their show before an anticipated throng of more than 30,000.

Chicago, showing more spirit than at any time this season, looked impressive as the Maroons awaited the invasion of Princeton's Tiger. This renewal of an old and always hotly contested intersectional series was expected to draw about 25,000 spectators.

Notre Dame's squad of 42 players headed east for Pittsburgh and a battle with Carnegie Tech victims last Saturday of Purdue. The Irish held a light drill yesterday checking defense assignments against Tech plays. Ohio State has an open date and next weeks swings into preparation for Northwestern.

B.B. PILOT
GRID COACH

BY HUBINLEY

PERHAPS some learned professor of psychology will kindly come to my assistance in solving a problem that has been bothering me for many a semester.

Briefly, it is this: Why are almost all football coaches pessimistic in their pre-game and pre-season predictions, while baseball pilots usually go in for optimistic forecasts?

It practically amounts to a diamond tradition that a baseball manager whose team has first division possibilities must go on record as predicting a pennant for his club.

Yet if a grid mentor ever came out and said "We're a cinch for the Rose Bowl," everybody within the sound of his voice would have to be revived by smelling salts. Victorian grid followers might even die from the shock if Coach Torp of good old Doghouse U. actually predicted a victory for his men, even if they were playing the Old Men's Home or the Fat Men's Chowder and Marching club.

Why shouldn't a football coach turn optimistic once in a while, just for a change or something?

ODDS HIGH AGAINST PERFECT GRID TEAM

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA, Oct. 15—What is your football team's chance of a "perfect record this season"?

It is about 935 to 1 you will be disappointed if you expect it to finish undefeated untied and unscored upon. These odds were figured today from a survey of records of 134 leading colleges for the last 25 years—the period of modern football.

There have been only four full-fledged perfect seasons since full development of the forward pass in 1912. Only Texas A. & M. (twice), Colgate and Depauw marched through a full schedule without a blemish in the 25-year span.

Dana X. Bible, now at Texas is the only coach to produce two "perfect" teams among the 134 colleges. His Texas A. & M. Aggies shut out 18 opponents while rolling up 545 points in 1917 and 1919.

Andy Kerr's Colgate Red Raiders of 1932 nipped through nine foes without yielding a point while totaling 264 themselves. Little De-pauw university of Indiana blanked seven teams of slower company in 1933.

DAIRY QUEEN CHOPS BIG CHEESE AT SHOW

More Than Ton Distributed to Spectators; Davey Takes Part in Ceremony.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—A giant nearly as heavy as the massive bulls shown in the judging ring took the spotlight at the national dairy show here today.

A cheese weighing a ton and 100 pounds surrendered to a knife wielded by brunet Alice Baker, 18-year-old Wisconsin dairy queen attending as guest of honor.

Assisting her were Gov. Martin L. Davey, Agricultural Director Earl H. Hanefeld, Commissioner Charles L. Hill of the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets, and Margaret Topovski, 17-year-old Ohio health queen chosen to reign over the dairy show.

The cheese, requiring 23,000 pounds of milk, was made at a Denmark, Wis., dairy under state supervision. Between 8,000 and 10,000 persons were expected to taste it.

Judges continued to study Brown Swiss and Guernsey cattle and Percheron horses before naming more champions. Horse pulling eliminations paved the way for heavyweight and lightweight final events Saturday.

Grand championships decided yesterday were Foremost Highflyer of the Oaklands at Ann Arbor, Mich., Jersey bull; Bournedale Martha of Censor farms at Farmington, Mich., Guernsey cow; and Mary's Nell of Foxwood farm at Wasco, Ill., Brown Swiss cow.

SHERRILL WOULD TRAP FLOOD WATER

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15—Col. C. O. Sherrill, former army engineer recalled recently as city manager, applied the principle of a cellar drain to flood control today and envisaged a plan which he said should aid the replenishment of a receding water-table.

"Why not provide a collateral conservation benefit from the millions we will spend for keeping our cities high and dry?" he asked, in outlining his proposal to The Associated Press.

Col. Sherrill who, as an army engineer had a hand in the drafting of early flood control projects, then as city manager, a part toward their realization, would construct a "drain" or trap behind each dam or reservoir wall, to permit a regulated flow into subterranean stratums of gravel and silt.

TRANSPORTATION INJURIES DECREASE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—Ohio public transportation injuries and fatalities decreased 10 per cent for the first nine months of this year compared with the same period last year, although the number of accidents increased slightly more than 4 per cent, the state utilities commission reported today.

George S. Fink, statistician, said, "this is indeed encouraging, showing that safety measures fostered at the present time are having some affect."

The report includes accidents to buses, motor truck companies, private contract carriers and interurban and steam railroads, but not accidents involving strictly private conveyances.

VATICAN SOURCES DENY WAR STAND

Brands As False Statement Regarding Communism Fight.

By The Associated Press

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 15—Assertions of private Vatican sources that instructions already have gone to missionaries in the far east regarding their conduct in the Sino-Japanese war, were denied officially today by the Vatican semi-official news service. It said:

"The news has been distributed in America and published under sensational headlines that the Vatican seeks to abet the fight against communism in Japanese favor."

The news service added:

"Instructions to this effect are said to have been issued to representatives of the Holy See in the far east. Both pieces of news are absolutely false and have been officially denied by Archbishop Giuseppe Pizzardo, (undersecretary for ecclesiastical affairs). Msgr. Tardini (undersecretary of state) and Archbishop Costantini (secretary of the congregation for the propagation of the faith)."

ELKS FORMING CLASS FOR DEC. 2

Three applications for membership in connection with a Steam Shovel class to be initiated Dec. 2 with L. H. Whisler of Willard, district deputy grand exalted ruler present, were received at a regular meeting of Marion lodge of Elks last night. The lodge balloted on one candidate.

On Nov. 11 the lodge will hold open house to veterans of all wars following the Armistice day parade. On Tuesday, Oct. 26, Boy Scout troop No. 1 sponsored by the lodge will celebrate its silver jubilee.

On Oct. 28 the annual dance will be held.

REPAIRS UNDER WAY AT FIRE STATION

Extensive repairs to the West Center street fire station now are under way as a WPA project. The work includes building of a new front, replacing the concrete floor and painting.

One of the front doors of the building, originally planned for two pieces of motor equipment, will be removed and walled up since the department keeps only one machine there. The work is part of a general WPA project calling for improvements and repairs at all city fire stations.

EPISCOPALIANS SCAN PAY RAISE DEMAND

Increase Suggested in Salaries of Underpaid Priests; Head Bishop Approved.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15—An arraignment of clergymen who "worshipped at the altar of mammon" prompted a movement in the Protestant Episcopal church today to increase the salaries of underpaid priests.

This subject came to the fore at the church's triennial convention after legislation had been enacted to make the presiding bishop the supreme spiritual and temporal power of the church.

The house of deputies approved, and sent to the house of bishops for concurrence, a resolution to set up a joint commission which would survey salaries of the clergy and recommend to the 1940 convention how "the present unequal remunerations may be adjusted."

Rev. Oscar F. Green, of Palo Alto, Calif., who introduced the resolution, declared that "this disparity of income" is "jeopardizing our missionary program."

The problem also demands attention, he said, because "all of us think too much of money. We do not stay on the job where we are most useful, but we strive to find a place of higher pay.

He declared, "I am ashamed every time I receive my salary check" because "my check is larger than those of nine-tenths of my brethren."

A survey of the salaries of 300 ministers in Virginia, California, Utah and Nevada showed a range of $7,500 to $720 annually, and an average of $1,863, exclusive of living quarters, Mr. Green told the deputies.

STEELS RALLY SAGGING LIST

Brisk Upswing Amid Increased Volume Reverses Losses of One to Three Points.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—With U. S. Steel pointing the way, leading stocks put on a sharp rally in today's market after an early washout that swept numerous issues to new lows for the past 10 years.

The ticker tape fell behind on both the selling and buying waves, but was as much as three minutes in arrears on the latter. Dealings slowed later. Extreme losses of 1 to 3 or more points were replaced with gains of as much to many instances.

Motors, with Chrysler conspicuous, remained the weak spot in the market's foundation and, near the fourth hour, other losers were plentiful.

Brokers attributed the rebound of favorites partly to quick-turn trading operations predicated on the theory a temporary upturn was overdue because of the lengthy and almost uninterrupted setback.

The fact foreign markets were inclined to resist further pressure was seen as a contributory recovery influence. More purchasing orders in American securities from abroad were also booked by houses with overseas connections.

Bonds, on the whole, lacked important support and the drift generaly was downward in this department. Commodities were erratic.

Tilting forward the greater part of the session, although some skidded before the finish, were Bethlehem, Republic, National Steel, Sloss-Sheffield, Inland Steel, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Anaconda, American Smelting, General Electric, Pennsylvania Railway, Loew's and Pullman.

No great surprise was expressed over spotty third quarter earnings statement, most of which reflected growing expenses.

Carriers were forced to contend with a more than sesonal decrease in last week's freight loadings, but the aggregate was well above the corresponding week last year.

Aiding steels was the reaffirmation of existing prices for finished products by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., thus reviving expectations postponed buying because of doubts regarding quotations will soon lift mill operations substantially.

Another slice in the price of zinc of ⅛ of a cent a pound was reported from one source. Standard Oil of New Jersey announced a reduction of ¼ a cent a gallon in tank car prices of "third grade" gasoline.

Wall Street was heartily in accord with the plea of Chairman Aldrich of the Chase National bank of New York for a lightening of market restrictions.

Strengthening the argument that business is much better than markets generaly was the week-end survey of Dun & Bradstreet which found retail sales throughout the country had picked up substantially as buying hesitation began to relax in most trade lines.

Heavier replacements in wholesale divisions, it was added, lifted volume 10 to 18 per cent above the same time in 1936 and indicated worrisome inventories may be dwindling to a greater extent than had been supposed.

Wool Market

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Oct. 15—A little trading was done on fine western grown wools in today's market. Prices, however, were irregular because of holders' varied ideas of values and extremely limited demand. Sales comprised mostly small clips, an sizable lines being reported in recent translations.
Prices on fine territory clips were below 10 cents, scoured basis, in some cases but sales under this level were reported mostly on inferior wools or distress lots.
A few fine territory wools of fair combing length sold around 30 to 42 cents, scoured basis. Most houses wanted at least 45 for large lots of good French combing length. Some asked 50 cents.

HIGH BLOOD Pressure
Thousands have been helped in this simple DRUGLESS way

French doctors have discovered a new, drugless method for the treatment of high blood pressure and its associated symptoms of headache and dizziness. They have found that a concentrate of garlic in certain measured dosage lowers the blood pressure an average of 10 to 40 points and that this effect may be prolonged by repeating the dose at prescribed intervals. They report further that as the blood pressure is lowered, in almost all cases the associated symptoms of headaches and dizziness disappear.
ALLIMIN Garlic-Parsley Tablets contain the essence of these ingredients in highly concentrated form. They are specially processed and free from objectionable taste and odor. They are absolutely guaranteed to be free from drugs of every kind. They act by improving the condition, not by dulling the pain.
ALLIMIN Essence of Garlic Parsley Tablets have been thoroughly tested in actual cases of high blood pressure by Dr. Frederic Damrau, eminent physician of Park Ave., New York City. Dr. Damrau has written a booklet telling of his favorable experience with these tablets A copy of this booklet may be had free by any high blood pressure sufferer

DUKE TO TAKE PUBLICITY JOB

Signs Contract with Commercial Firm, Says Cornelius Vanderbilt.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15 — Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., globe trotting writer, said here yesterday the Duke of Windsor has signed up as a representative of a commercial firm to start a world tour shortly after Christmas.

"His work naturally will be of a propaganda nature and is in keeping with his plans for world peace," said Vanderbilt, now visiting in Southern California.

"Windsor holds to the theory that undernourishment and ill-housing conditions are the cause of most internal strife. 'Wherever you find nearly intolerable living conditions you will find internal strife,' he once said to me."

The Los Angeles Times said it learned from other sources details of the American itinerary, as follows:

After arriving in New York the first part of November, the couple will go to Baltimore, later to Philadelphia and then to Chicago.

From Chicago, they will fly to San Francisco and motor to a San Luis Obisco County ranch, reportedly that of William Randolph Hearst. Three days later they will come to Los Angeles by automobile and be guests at a Santa Monica Beach home, said to be Marion Davies' residence.

After visiting in the Los Angeles area, the duke and duchess will fly to Palm Beach, Fla., to visit the Vincent Astors and others. They will sail on the Astor yacht to the Astor castle in the Bermudas for Christmas. They will leave after the holidays on the duke's world tour for his firm, the Times said.

BERLIN, Oct. 15—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor ended their Berlin visit last night when they entrained for Essen for a visit to the giant Krupp armament factories.

They were accompanied by Dr. Robert Ley, head of the German labor front. A crowd at the station gave a friendly sendoff.

Public Hero No. 1.

DEPARTMENT of justice agents closed in on Al Brady and two companions in Bangor, Me., Tuesday and did a thorough job of "liquidation"—Brady and Clarence Shaffer Jr. killed and a third outlaw captured.

The incident is reminiscent of the aggressive tactics which made the department of justice famous in the first instance. Agents closed in on the quarry and shot it out with them on their own terms, leaving no doubt of their efficiency.

There is in the Bangor affair, however, an encouraging detail not always present in the department's man hunts. The information which led to the showdown was provided by the manager of a sporting goods store, who became suspicious when certain customers purchased large quantities of ammunition.

He told the story to police, who communicated with Washington. This is an example of the kind of cooperation among private citizens, police and the federal department which, if applied generally, would make crime in the United States too expensive and risky to be attractive.

The store manager's name is Shepp Hurd. Until a better one comes along, how about making him Public Hero No.1?

Freedom Rings

IT SHOULDN'T be overlooked that in Boston a few nights ago a musical comedy, a sharp satire on the President of the United States and prominent individuals in his official family, opened auspiciously.

This is the first time a contemporary incumbent of the White House has been put on the pan for public amusement. The show is said to resemble what goes on privately when the Gridiron club in Washington lampoons prominent politicians and their advisers.

Maybe the fact such a show is being staged is a reflection on a condition in Washington which invites satire. More clearly, reflected, however, is the fact the show represents a type of freedom and a sane disregard for the overpomposity of politicians not duplicated anywhere on earth and which, in many countries today, would be acknowledged by the speedy execution of its writers and producers.

Gestures

TENTATIVE gestures of conciliation in organized labor's divided camp are being received coldly, but it's momentously important that they're being made.

It indicates one of several things may be true. Labor leaders may have become more concerned about the perils of dualism than about their personal ambitions and jealousies; that would be good for everybody concerned.

Or, having studied carefully organized labor's history, leaders may realize that unless their differences are patched up some of them will be eligible for removal with the ashes some eventful day. Half a century ago, organized labor split into vertical and craft factions. When the excitement was over, the vertical section had been pulverized.

If, finally, these matters have become plain to the men of destiny in organized labor, the labor movement will have to be revaluated as a factor in the development of a higher civilization in the United States. A camp divided against itself is one thing. A camp that sticks together is another.

Case Demonstration.

THIS is, internationalists tirelessly repeat, a world in which nations are dependent on one another.

Take the matter of silk stockings. Well dressed Americans women all wear them. That accounts for the fact that the United States buys 80 per cent of Japan's raw silk, its principal export product.

Without raw silk to sell abroad, Japan could not buy oil, iron, rubber and cotton from other nations. Without those materials Japan could not attack China, thereby worrying the countries which supply the Japanese army with the means of waging war.

Therefore, if American women did not wear silk stockings Japan could not wage war. But if it weren't for silk stockings, thousands of silk mill workers and clerks would be out of jobs, and American manufacturers and farmers wouldn't be able to sell oil, iron and cotton to Japan.

Apparently, the internationalists are right.

The Marion burglar who rings door bells to attract attention to the front of the house while he enters the rear is likely to experience his most embarrassing moment if he happens to come across a bell that doesn't ring.

Estimates indicating that Marion county farm crops are likely to rank above the state average can be regarded as evidence that this locality is favored with two important assets—good land and good farmers.

Briefly stated, the G-men did a bangup job at Bangor.

Today in Washington

When the President Gets His Ear to the Ground He May Be Hearing Nothing But Echo.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—President Roosevelt told a nationwide radio audience the other night that "anyone charged with preparing or judging national policies should have first-hand knowledge of the nation as a whole" and that was the reason why he, Mr. Roosevelt, has taken "trips to all parts of the country."

But how does the President get "first-hand knowledge?" On his trip to the southwest last year, he spent most of his time fishing in the Gulf of Mexico. When he goes to "the southeast," it is to rest at Warm Springs, Georgia, or to get aboard a boat at a Florida port. When he takes these trips "in the east," it is mostly to visit the palatial country estate of his family at Hyde Park, on the Hudson. On the latest trip across the continent, the President invited to his train all the politicians and "yes men" on the federal payroll. And they certainly told the President what they thought he wanted to hear—all Presidents get that kind of polite treatment by their henchmen.

The newspapers reported in great detail how almost every hour of the President's day was spent on his transcontinental trip. There was no mention of time spent with "the average man" or conferences with the persons in each region who represent not one side but both sides of the controversial issues on which a fair-minded President might be expected to want "first-hand knowledge."

But even the people who were addressed by Mr. Roosevelt did not get from him a clear picture of the national problems facing the country. He omitted to touch on the most vital question of all—the present business decline—which is in no small part due to the choking effects of new taxation all along the line.

Some Things Puzzling

Some of the things the President did say are somewhat puzzling, for they do not seem to accord with previously held views. Thus, at Grand Forks, North Dakota, in the heart of the agricultural area of the nation, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I have never subscribed to the constitutional theory that agriculture is a purely local matter and that it has, therefore, no national scope."

Only seven years ago—March 2, 1930, to be exact—Mr. Roosevelt while governor of New York, made a nationwide radio address in which he said:

"As a matter of fact and law, the governing rights of the states are all of those which have not been surrendered to the national government by the Constitution or its amendments. Wisely or unwisely, people know that under the Eighteenth amendment, congress has been given the right to legislate on this particular subject, but this is not the case in the matter of a great number of other vital problems of government, such as the conduct of public utilities, of banks, of insurance, of business, of agriculture, of education, of social welfare and of a dozen other important features. In these, Washington must not be encouraged to interfere."

The proper relations between the government of the United States and the governments of the several states is not something that has been corrected overnight. Mr. Roosevelt in 1930 stated the historic truth. He merely repeated the constitutional law of the land. Today, however, he disavows having made the public statement on March 2, 1930, or perhaps he has forgotten that he ever made it, though, to be sure, in the last two or three years the paragraph quoted above has been printed hundred of times and in thousands of different places.

If Mr. Roosevelt can impose his will on the supreme court and change the constitutional concept of agriculture, there is no reason why he can not do the same thing with respect to education, insurance and the "dozen other important features," such as wages and hours, which have hitherto been reserved to the people or the states and which now have suddenly come within federal jurisdiction because Mr. Roosevelt wills it so.

The Common Wisdom

The President's western trip taught him, he says, that "it is refreshing to go out through the country and feel the common wisdom," but he doesn't reveal what magic process he uses to tune in on the "common wisdom" when he is traveling in state with a retinue of reporters, secret service men, and parasitic politicians.

Mr. Roosevelt says he gets "bored sitting in Washington hearing certain people talk and talk about all that government ought not do—people who got all they wanted from government back in the days when the financial institutions and the railroads were being bailed out in 1933." This will be news to most everybody in Washington, for a reexamination of the President's engagement list, which is published every day for the last four years, will reveal that Mr. Roosevelt spends most of his time with young new dealers and members of congress or with that vast number of sycophants, among them a few business men, who like to tell the President what he likes to hear.

If any considerable portion of the President's time is spent in listening to persons who got money out of the government in the Hoover days—something that would seem automatically to rule them out any way under the present administration—the newspaper reports of what the President does with his time must have been grossly inaccurate during his first term and are evidently even more inaccurate now.

So far as is known, the President listens very little to his callers, anyway. He is represented by many of his visitors usually as doing most of the talking. If, by chance, the President is getting bored with much of the talk he hears, it is quite possible that he has in mind the steady stream of senators and representatives who take up so much of his time. But this isn't much of a clue to the mystery, for the President appears to be a glutton for self-punishment—he has just called a special session of congress.

On the Record

The Cornucopia Club Delays Its Program To Take Up Discussion of Congress Session.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—"We had intended to take up the nineteenth century this afternoon," said Mrs. William J. Rattler, president of the Cornucopia club, "but so many of the ladies have asked me to take up the program for the next session of congress that we will put off the nineteenth century until next week.

Dorothy Thompson

I hope that each and every one of you agree with me that it can wait.

"Now, ladies, the members of the Cornucopia have always stood firmly for what might be called without fear of successful contradiction the more abundant life, and the very name of our club symbolizes the horn of plenty filled to overflowing with the fruits and flowers of the field, given us for our happiness by bountiful mother nature. We are all, I am sure, interested in agriculture, and nobody more than the members of our agricultural committee whose ammia campaign last summer was one of the brightest chapters in the history of this club. Congress is going to take up agriculture as soon as everybody is settled down in Washington in November, and as one of our mottos is to be forebarded is to be forewarned, we thought it would be nice to take up agriculture at this meeting.

"One of the first things we run across in agriculture is the farmer, and you all remember the beautiful poem read by Miss Lillie McBee at one of our meetings last winter. The one called 'The Man With the Hoe,' that began 'Homeward the weary plowman plows his way.' Now, the farmer has a woe because he always tries to make a big crop and when he succeeds it breaks his heart because he gets more for a big crop than a little one, but he doesn't get as much for a bushel or bale, and his wife and children have a very unpleasant time [illegible] the country—Mr. Rattler was telling me about it the other night—steers are $17.50 a hundred, and even if nobody has any to sell that's a high price, and, of course, high prices make everybody prosperous from the sun-kissed Golden Gate to romantic New Orleans. So, ladies, what is the government going to do? It is going to arrange everything so prices will always be high and what the farmer doesn't grow one year he will consume the next by putting what he didn't grow into the ever-normal granary during the lean years, just like the Israelites, as we are told in the Bible, did in Egypt. I always say there's nothing you can't find in the Bible if you look for it.

"Of course, we ladies want to help the farmer all we can, but we are all jolly little budgeteers with homes and children to look after, and if prices get too high we can do just like we do when a picture is shown at the Strand for $1.50 and we wait 'til it comes to the Rivoli, right around the corner, at popular prices of 40 cents. So if the farmer puts his grain in the granary so prices will be high he will get the government to let it out again so they will be low. And that's the whole idea behind the ever-normal, ever-weather, ever-high, ever-low, ever-lasting ever-normal granary, so in that way prices will be high for the farmer and low for us people in the city, and the abundant life will be had by all.

Complicated Subject

"Now agriculture is almost as complicated a subject as the time we look up Egyptian architecture, but it's here to stay and one of the bright spots in the history of the Cornucopia club is how its members took facts fearlessly in the face. First we have the farmer. We've already talked about him. Then we have wages and hours, and that will help everybody, because the higher the wages and the shorter the hours everybody will have more money to spend and more time in which to spend it, so the people will work half the week and run around the rest of the week, spend all the money they've made and the farmer will be helped

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, Oct. 15, 1927. Marion circle, Child Conservation league, was making final preparations to attend the state federation convention at its three-day annual session to open here Oct. 19.

Mrs. H. O. Toms of South State street and Mrs. David Rexroth of East Center street returned from Canton, where they attended a state welfare conference.

Stanley B. Strayer of Marion returned home from Lima with a baseball which had been autographed for him by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig while they were in Lima with their team of barnstormers.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Sorreles of Mary street.

Mrs. Lester Craven entertained a company of children at her home on Miami street in celebration of the tenth birthday anniversary of her son, Ralph.

Mrs. J. M. Patten, 35, former Marion residents, died at her home in Ashland.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Oct. 15, 1917. The combined German land and sea drive against Petrograd which had been expected ever since the Russians evacuated Riga on Sept. 3 was reported under way. The Germans were reported to be meeting grim resistance with fire from Russian land batteries sinking four German destroyers.

Among the large subscriptions to the second Liberty loan listed here were: Susquehanna Silk Mills, $15,000; "a prominent manufacturer," $10,000; Henry Suelitz, $10,000; Dr. C. E. Sawyer, $5,000; Knights of Columbus, $5,000, Catholic Knights of Ohio, $5,000; and George W. Hill, $4,000.

Miss Teresa Oettlin of Marion and Robert Plagemann of Springfield were united in marriage at St. Mary Catholic church by Rev. Father Joseph Denning.

Announcement was made that William Jennings Bryan, touring Ohio in the interest of prohibition, would speak here Oct. 23.

The Chicago White Sox won the World Series, winning the sixth and final game against the New York Giants at the New York Polo Grounds, 4-2. Faber pitched for the White Sox and Perritt and Benton for the Giants.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Walters of East Center street.

The feature picture at the Marion theater was "Baby Mine" starring Madge Kennedy and at the Grand, Billie Burke had the leading role in "The Mysterious Miss Terry."

Members of the Council of Jewish Women met at the home of Mrs. M. Hess on East Church street and gave a program on the subject, "Food Conservation."

The Government's Mind

Announcement of Aggressive Foreign Policy Leaves Official Mental Processes in Doubt.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Before leaving for his western tour, President Roosevelt had included a brief paragraph or two about foreign affairs into a speech he made about the Constitution. He said:

"Fear spreads throughout the world—fear of aggression, fear of invasion, fear of revolution, fear of death. The people of America are rightly determined to keep that growing menace from our shores.

"The known and measurable danger of becoming involved in war we face confidently. As to that, your government knows your mind, and you know your government's mind."

Then he made the western trip. He talked to a lot of people and they talked to him. On his return trip he made the Chicago speech, talking of the desirability of taking "positive" action to "quarantine" that 10 per cent of the world's population which wouldn't keep its hands off its guns.

Unexpected by Many

That speech surprised a substantial part of official and unofficial Washington. Maybe, after all, Washington merely thought it knew what was in the government's mind. Or maybe the government, after its tour west, had discovered something in the country's mind that it hadn't suspected was there in such force.

At any rate, the talk was so much more aggressive in tone than the stand taken by the state department in its several proclamations about the peace-mindedness of the United States that some surmised the President had become a bit impatient.

Another surmise: That the President had discovered a rising swell of American sentiment against sitting on the international fence.

First Neutrality Test

What actually has happened, in the view of many here, is that the neutrality act has been put to its first test before the public. It wasn't put to a test in the Ethiopian affair, which occurred before the present act was passed.

Spain was not much of a test. Both sides seemed to be fairly well matched, and civil wars among Spanish-speaking peoples have been rather frequent affairs on this continent for centuries.

But the current oriental war—if one may yet call it that—is different. It brings out American sympathies which it is difficult to prevent being translated into action.

But congress debated that question a long time before passing the neutrality act. Senators Nye, Clark, Vandenberg and others insisted that isolation was the best means of keeping out of foreign war and that any effort to cooperate with other nations in suppressing outbreaks was simply inviting a repetition of 1917. The vote in the senate was 62 to 6 in favor of the neutrality act which incorporates that view.

But former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson says a boycott by the United States and Great Britain of Japanese silk and other exports will leave that country no money to fight China. And, he says such a boycott wouldn't bring war.

Those are the two views, and the President's speech appears to favor the Stimson view of doing something—now.

Up From Now On.

WPA rolls have hit bottom for the current year and are now expected to increase from month to month.

Number of persons employed shrank from this year's peak of 2,145,000 in February to 1,455,000 in mid-September. There were still 2,000,000 WPA workers at the end of May and most of those dropped after that date were taken off because congress limited WPA appropriations to $1,500,000,000.

The extent to which persons will be added to the rolls as cold weather goes on is uncertain and depends, according to unofficial advices, largely on the extent to which business continues to recover and expand private employment.

Congress provided that the appropriation be divided in 12 parts but gave no directions as to how much money should be spent in any given month. The drastic summer slash in the rolls was meant to assure enough funds for winter and spring, assuming business continued to improve. WPA may or may not be back at Capitol Hill for more before the fiscal year is out.

The Two Colonels.

It is time to tell you about Col. Irvin Schimmelpfennig, born in Utah, and Col. Haig Shekerjian, born in Asiatic Turkey. Where they were born has nothing to do with it, but we thought perhaps you'd like to know.

Together they were driving homeward from a West Pointers' dinner in Washington when their car careened across the sidewalk, sideswiped a lamp post and startled the daylights out of a policeman.

He came bounding over to the car as they stopped to look over the damage. Nothing was hurt but a fender and the policeman's dignity.

Colonel Schimmelpfennig was driving. The policeman pulled out a ticket book and snapped: "What's your name?"

"Schimmelpfennig."

"Spell it."

"S-c-h-i-m-m-e-l-p-f—"

"Lay off that. This is the law speaking. Hey, you," pointing to Shekerjian.

"Shekerjian."

"Spell it."

"Sah-ee-k-e-r-j—"

The utterly indignant policeman slammed shut his note book, jammed it in his pocket.

"Don't you dare try to fool with me. Get out of here before I run you in."

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Thoughts while strolling: Octavus Roy Cohen sounds like a chorine opening. What a pal Joe Miller has been to Bob Burns. Gloomy monuments to the past—the World and Tribune Buildings on Park Row. Learn one thing each day: In Japan O-hi-o means good morning.

Something else comes up like thunder out China 'cross the bay. Ripley says you can see China 100 miles at sea. Add wise old expressions: E. D. Coblentz's. Sidney Kent, Mr. Big of the movies who used to be a cowboy. And his beautiful wife. Hooray for Bruce Barton!

If you can't think of that Chinese General's name, listen to car wheels going over rails. It's Chiang Kai-shek. If Gloria Swanson has aged in the past 15 years she doesn't show it. So many know that Bugs Baer can draw pictures as funny as his paragraphs. And that means high hilarity.

For one of those English countryside scenes, jogging along in a cob-drawn trap I'll take Oscar of the Waldorf. What Hollywood will do to Community Ray Noble becomes one of the crack stage ass comedians. They say J. P. Morgan likes to prowl around pipe shops here and abroad.

Claire Luce, a town toast for her dainty dancing in the Follies, is making London sit up as her roles as a dramatic actress. She has appeared in two hits in a row without twitching a toe. And still another deep drama is being readied for her. Miss Luce is a natural platinum blonde, best remembered for her entrance in a Ziegfeld show astride an ostrich—the same bird that once chased W. C. Fields into a street because in passing he playfully plucked a tail feather.

In those days Bill Fields never chirped a line. He was an expert juggler, with a comic routine, so superbly done Ziegfeld featured him in billing. As press agent for his shows, I used to watch him practice juggling on the old Frolic Roof. He would show up at 9 a. m.—unheard hour for an actor—and work until the matinee. I see Bill only occasionally in late years. But in those days, too, on account of his large red nose and speech, everybody thought he was a perpetual souse. Yet he seldom drank. Booze is fatal to juggling.

A restaurant picturesquely mellow with days agone is the Smith's at Poughkeepsie, where the famous brothers got their idea for cough drops and where they first manufactured them and started to bank up a fortune. Pictures the same as those on the cough drop boxes, hang on either side of the door. One says: William Smith, born 1830, died 1913. The other, Andrew Smith, born 1836, died 1898. Paddle fans whirl above the tables presided over by corn-fed looking waitresses—and the place has the pleasant atmosphere of the cozy ice cream parlors of those agreeable meeting places in the prairie towns of the 90's.

The raids and temporary closing of the Minsky burlesque is to appearances only a gesture. The sanitized version, law forbids the name Minsky and the term burlesque. But it's the same old dish—differently garnished. Most of them have been reopened with potential Gypsy Rose Lees just as daring as ever in that supreme art of yokel yanking, the strip tease. The cheaper Broadway diversion is to stand near these show places and watch the old boys saunter up, look up and down furtively, and dart in like frightened rabbits.

My burlesque education was acquired in celebrated People's Over-the-Rhine in Cincinnati. Where the show began when the gallery bounced, rapped and yelled "Hats off!" Waiters paraded the aisles between acts with foaming glasses of beer year after year we hailed with delight Billy Watson's Beef Trust Blondes and Snuffy the Cab Driver. It was packed with jovial commonness such as whangs on the conk with bladders and lisping psychological lollipops which minced about in their mignon way. But with all the rowdiness it never permitted such vulgarities as the strip tease. Men of family on nights out went to burlesque, with wives' consent, just to give them the feeling they were raising the very Old Ned.

Someone Was Wron

"IT HAS been stated in some papers that [illegible] stated there was no evidence Black had ever been a member of the Klan. No statement made can fairly bear that construction."—From an interview with Sen. William E. Borah, "The Christian Science Monitor," Oct. 7.

Mr. Borah: "Mr. President, the committee of the judiciary had this matter before it, and I do not see any reason why it should be sent back to the committee. There has never been at any time one iota of evidence that Senator Black was a member of the Klan. No one has suggested any source from which such evidence could be gathered . . .

"We know that Sen. Black has said in private conversation, not since this matter came up but at other times, that he was not a member of the Klan, and there is no evidence to the effect that he is. What is there to examine? Of course, the country seems to proceed upon the theory that there is something to examine, but there is not.

"There is no fact or facts even indicating it. It is rumor or hearsay. For myself, I am not desirious of entering upon any investigation regarding it, unless some responsible person is prepared to make the charge, not based upon hearsay, but upon knowledge of some facts tending to sustain the charge. If it goes back to the committee, upon whose charge or upon what facts shall we begin investigation"—From the Congressional Record for August 17, page 11651.

Doors Open and Lights On

A MARION, O., inventor has rigged up a device to turn on the garage lights when the car is on the driveway. It flips them off as the car leaves. The compression of air as the auto rolls over a section of garden hose gives the force to turn the switch. An Ohio resident has completed a home where at least one of the three garage doors opens when a car approaching car breaks the beam of a photo-electric eye. Anywhere roll-up doors may be installed to be operated electrically by a key inserted in a post to be reached from the automobile window.

These are all signs that the rigors of the pioneers are being wiped out. When some Goldberg puts a garage door on his home which can be sent up or down by a toot of the horn, America really will be on Easy Street.—Toledo Blade.

WOMEN'S SHOE SIZE NOW NO. 8 AVERAGE

Extra-Small Foot No Longer Popular, Veteran Dealer Says.

By United Press

RALEIGH, N. C.— Milady's disunctive and smart ... appearing ultra-small, has ... average of four sizes in ... two decades and is growing ...

Furthermore, modern, well-... women no longer object ... wearing larger-sized shoes. ... ask for them. They have ... the tiny foot as a cri... feminine loveliness and ... in for comfort in their ... according to Roscoe ... president of a North ... retail shoe corporation. ... average size of women's ... years ago was 4." Griffin ... "Today it is an 8."

"Women's feet will continue to ... larger for several years, ... believes, now that shoes ... fit and permit proper ... development.

"Most important of all, women ... don't worry about their ... being large. They are willing ... be fitted, instead of demanding certain sizes, usually too ... Griffin added.

He explained the increasing ... of women's feet as due to a gradual change from too-small, ... styled-for-style-and-not-for-comfort shoes to narrower, longer and made-to-fit shoes which the women of today insist on buying.

"It allows normal foot growth," Griffin explained. "Women say, too, that corns and bunions are much less frequent."

Griffin said that in the 20 years he had sold women's shoes sizes increased to the No. 8 average.

"The new demand for a style that fits the foot, instead of the fancy, is shown by the fact that many shoes from 5 A's to triple E's—are sold now, a thing undreamed of years ago."

"Today by far the greatest number of shoes are size 8, while requests and fittings in 9s and 10s are nothing unusual."

"More women are working and on their feet today than 20 or 30 years ago, and continual standing on feet or use of them tends to make them spread."

Griffin emphazed, however, that the "most healthy sign" is that women no longer are "ashamed" 'of big feet and therefore want the size they should have for normal growth and comfort.

SURVEYOR TO WORK ON COUNTY ROADS

County commissioners yesterday directed County Engineer Carl H. Tozzer to work on sections of two roads in Prospect township in preparation for further improvements to be made at township expense. On the C. G. Cahler road, which was established last Jan. 20, the engineer is ordered to do grading as soon as possible. The road is approximately a half mile long, branching off the Centerville-Newmans road.

The other road is an approximately half mile section of the Centerville-Green Camp road which is to be put into condition for receiving 100 tons of stone from the township.

ROAD ESTABLISHED BY COUNTY BOARD

County commissioners established tentatively yesterday as a road a half-mile lane extending north from Hurr road in Tully township to the county line. They set Nov. 1 at 10 a. m. for viewing the site and Nov. 4 at 10 a. m. for a hearing in their office. The lane leads to buildings of Harry Hopkins. It will be necessary to make a survey and to grade the roadway, according to the county engineer's office.

ARE GIRLS "UNAPPEALING"?

A brand new complaint from a modern young man has come to my desk. He says that the girl of today is "unappealing." The debutante, he asserts, is cold, unsympathetic and wears a poker face; while the business girl is more interesting, but "hard-boiled."

That is a terrible indictment. Because "appeal," whether sex-appeal or emotional appeal, is what every woman likes to think she has; and her yearning for "eye-appeal" is what makes the beauty-specialists rich.

Still, it seems to me that the modern girl should be a refreshing change to the male sex, from the old-fashioned girl who overworked the "appeal" racket and kept them running for the smelling salts.

The girl of today tries to be what men have been urging women to be for centuries. "reasonable"! That all. She swallows her emotions, chokes back hypersensitiveness and keeps a stiff upper lip. She is a good little sport and takes a lot of things "on the chin," which would have sent the old-fashioned woman into hysterics. She doesn't faint or squeal without provocation, or go about with a broken heart on her sleeve.

Probably that is why she is less "appealing." Because she is not constantly playing on a man's sympathy just in order to hold his attention and keep his love from going into a coma.

She may not have the soft, coquettish, clinging ways, which appeal to a man's vanity, catch his imagination and wind themselves around his heart. But neither has she that stranglehold on his conscience or his protective chivalry which must have choked the courage out of him.

She seldom flatters his sense of "masculine superiority" by appealing to his masterfulness or weeping on his shoulder; and she doesn't hang on his coat-lapel and beg him to "explain" things to her. But neither does she steep him in tears nor get on his nerves.

Perhaps all this is her big mistake. Perhaps she should let herself go, and be more clinging, more helpless—even more childish and emotional. Men seem to fall for the sort of woman who keeps them busy coddling, petting, consoling, spoiling and catering to her.

But you never can tell. In the old days, if a woman was sentimental and sensitive, it bored a man to tears—and if she was jealous, it drove him—to another woman. If she was high-strung and excitable, they called it "hysteria"—and if she was weepy they called it "nerves."

The modern girl has learned that a woman's emotions are always either a nuisance or a bore to a man; and she hides hers behind a poker face and just laughs them off. But she is not hard-boiled inside; because there is no such thing as a hard-boiled woman—emotionally. We are all "one-minute-eggs" at heart. And the girl of today is just a swell relief from her predecessor!

EASEMENTS ASKED FOR STATE HIGHWAY

Plans for transfer of that section of the Cardington-Iberia road extending through Marion county to the state highway system moved nearer completion yesterday as county commissioners directed the county engineer to prepare easements for a 50-foot right of way. The road extends across the northeastern corner of the county in Tully township. Commissioners earlier this month agreed to the transfer.

TO TAKE BIDS ON BRIDGE REMOVAL

County Engineer Carl H. Tozzer yesterday was directed by county commissioners to prepare bidding blanks, details and specifications for removal of the present King's Mill bridge and erection in its stead of the old Newmans bridge which is now at the state highway yards here. The county will advertise for bids.

The engineer has estimated the cost of making the transfer at $6,400. The action follows Mr. Tozzer's report recently that WPA workers have virtually completed building of new concrete abutments at the bridge.

CAT CAUSES FALSE ALARM

CLEVELAND BANKER FREED, BUT VERY ILL

Kenyon Painter Placed Under Oxygen Tent After Davey Grants Him Pardon.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—An oxygen tent today prevented Kenyon V. Painter, former Cleveland banker and big game hunter, from enjoying the freedom granted him by Ohio's chief executive from a prison sentence.

In such critical condition from a heart ailment that physicians said he might not live long, the 70-year-old principal stockholder in the defunct Union Trust Co. received a full pardon from Gov. Martin L. Davey. Painter was serving a one to 30-year term for misapplication of $2,000,000 of bank funds.

The pardon immediately drew a reaction which Gov. Davey said he expected.

Cuyahoga County Judge Lee E. Skeel, who presided at Painter's trial, and Cuyahoga County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan referred to letters they had written to the executive opposing freedom for Painter.

Cullitan's letter had read, "It would be a serious blow to the administration of criminal justice in this state. It would be an indication by you that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor and that power and influence can determine the course of administration of criminal justice."

Judge Skeel earlier had said "Painter ought to be in the penitentiary."

The governor's pardon announcement said "I expect to be criticized for this action. However, I believe it is the just and humane thing to do and am willing to take whatever criticism may be heaped upon me."

He said further that Mrs Painter "lies desperately ill through the deep despair from her husband's misfortune," that Union Trust depositors would be paid in full, and that Painter "sacrificed much of his own wealth in a heroic effort to save the bank."

Painter entered the penitentiary June 28, two years and 35 days after conviction. His appeals, which finally reached the United States supreme court, were denied.

DALHOVER IS COOL AS HE FACES CHAIR

"temporarily" until a strong murder case against him had been completed. Indiana grand juries already have returned indictments against him for the slayings of Richard Rivers, Indianapolis police sergeant, and Paul Minneman, state policeman.

Capt. George Mingle of the Ohio state patrol sought here to link the gang with several unsolved Ohio crimes, but declined to comment on information he received.

Dalhover, held under $50,000 bond on a warrant charging robbery of three Indiana banks, was brought here yesterday by airplane from Bangor.

After recovering from his first air trip, he talked freely to jail attaches and Julius J. Wichser, chief deputy U. S. marshal.

Wichser disclosed Dalhover and Shaffer threatened at one time to kill Brady because of his "show-off" antics.

"Dalhover told me Brady liked to wear dress clothes every night, and that it was Brady's idea that the gang operate a night club and skating rink in Baltimore, Md., Wichser said.

He quoted Dalhover as saying, "We decided to threaten Al after he got hold of that skating rink and was making a fool of himself."

Dalhover, Wichser said, had a "hunch" that the gang's trip into Maine would cause trouble.

Dalhover and Shaffer became dissatisfied in recent months with Brady's leadership, Wichser revealed, and decided a majority vote would rule their actions.

Some of the gunmen's major crimes were committed after they escaped from jail at Greenfield, Ind., in October, 1936.

Jail attaches said Dalhover told them, "when we broke out of jail at Greenfield, all I wanted was one year of freedom, and I thought we were good for that. Well, we were out a year."

Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Shaffer, his grandmother, Mrs. George Shaffer, said today.

At Bangor, Dr. Herbert C. Scribner, county medical examiner, announced Brady's body, unclaimed for a specified period, had been turned over to the municipal overseers of the poor. He

NEW PAROLE BOARD MEMBERS SWORN IN

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—A revamped Ohio parole board met today for swearing in of three new members and organization for setting up a program which Gov. Martin L. Davey, who appointed all four members, said he hoped would "demand public respect and place Ohio near the top of the 48 states in the union."

Mrs. Ann Makley of Dayton was reported slated to succeed Carl W. Smith of Kenton, board secretary, who would get another state job.

Smith said three recent resignations and appointments had put the board behind in its work.

Bishop Reverdy Ransom of Xenia, Afro-American Methodist church official, has served several months. He is a Democrat. The incoming members are Judge Harrison W. Jewell of Delaware, former Judge N. Craig McBride of Hillsboro and Attorney Frank Sotak of Cleveland.

A.F.L. Official Hails C.I.O. Offer

By The Associated Press

DENVER, Oct. 15—George Harrison, chairman of the American Federation of Labor's peace committee, said today that the C.I.O.'s latest peace proposal "looked like it had possibilities."

William Green, A.F.L. president, refused to comment on newspaper reports of the Committee for Industrial Organization's proposal to send 10 representatives to Washington, D. C., the week of Oct 25 to discuss the basis of further peace negotiations with a committee of the same size from the A.F.L.

Green said he would reserve comment until he had received the C.I.O.'s telegram.

The 57th annual convention of the A. F. L. was to end today with action on reports of several committees, but delegates began to depart yesterday after William Green unanimously had been elected to his 13th term as federation president.

Green's election came only minutes after the convention approved without dissent a message proposing to the C. I. O. meeting in Atlantic City conditions for a "peace conference" between the two groups.

Similar To 1936 Offer

With minor differences, the message, in answer to a peace overture originating the C. I. O. earlier this week, was similar to an offer the A. F. L made last year.

Although approving a plan for a conference with the C. I. O. unions they have branded as "rebels," federation leaders made plain their determination that any unification must not be on terms "dictated by Lewis and other C. I. O. proponents.

MARION'S TRIPLETS, TWINS PROGRESSING

Prior to the selection of names, they were known as No. 1, No. 2 and No 3 in the order they were born.

One Twin In Incubator

At the Parcher household, the problem was somewhat different but just as trying. Diana Rose, the second of the twins to arrive, required the warmth of the incubator at the City hospital for many weeks, going home less than a month ago. Dividing attention between home and hospital, the parents found life busy at times. Although the work has been increased, they agree that life is better with their unusual twins under the same roof with them.

If everything goes well, the Parchers will find July a merry round of birthday celebrations, with all four members of the family taking a hand. The mother's birthday anniversary is on July 27, one day after Larry Lou's and two days before Diana Rose's. Mr. Parcher's birthday anniversary is on July 10.

Larry Lou now weighs 6¼ pounds and his sister 5¼ pounds. They get meals of broth of oatmeal and syrup and special baby milk every two hours during the day and every three hours at night, taking an average of three ounces at each feeding.

Triplets' Weights Vary.

Among the Cratty triplets, June, the second born, is the heavyweight, weighing 7 pounds and 14 ounces. Jean, the third born, is second with 7 pounds, five ounces and Jane is third with 7 pounds, 6 ounces.

Jane has the edge on her sisters so far as pleasant dispositions are concerned. She likes to spend several hours at a time lying in her bed and looking around her, as quietly and contentedly as though asleep. Her sisters, however, spend about 21 hours a day sleeping and during their waking hours they want action. If it isn't time for a meal or a bath and they're not sleepy, they're apt to complain, Mrs. Cratty said.

Scores of persons have visited the Cratty home to see the triplets in the last few weeks. "Some of them were from out of the city—strangers to me," Mrs. Cratty said. "They told me they had read about the triplets and wanted to see them."

Antics Are Amusing.

The antics of the children amuse the entire family. Mrs. Cratty said they have "found their hands" but as yet haven't shown any awareness of the existence of their baby sisters. So far there is every indication they will bear a strong resemblance to one another, she said.

The unusualness of triplets is indicated by medical records showing they occur once in every 7,103 births.

The birth of the Parcher twins three days apart was described at Columbus by Dr. John H Upham, president of the American Medical association and dean of the Ohio State university college of medicine as "quite unusual." He added, however, that the birth was not a rarity.

RETURN FROM HOSPITAL

Lee Endicott of 236 Chestnut street, who underwent an operation on his right foot in Mt. Carmel hospital at Columbus recently, has returned to his home. His condition is reported improving. Mr. Endicott, who is permitted to receive visitors, will be confined to his home about six weeks because of his limb being in a cast.

MARRIAGE LICENSE ISSUED

George W. Smith, 72, of 118 Olney avenue, and Mrs. Edna E. Bader, 60, of 472 West Center street, were granted a marriage license in probate court yesterday. Mrs Bader said today the marriage plans have not been completed. Mr. Smith gave his occupation as a plasterer on the application for a license.

MARION CO. SCHOOLS NEW TRAINING FIELD

all phases of his being—emotional, social, mental, physical and spiritual. It tends to see that he grows along all these fronts."

Mr. Mills said he hopes that out of the program will grow a child who will be able to adjust himself to new and challenging situations, to be able to make intelligent decisions on his own level in the light of what data he might have at hand.

Works In First Grade

Children in the first grade are receiving the attention of Mr. Temple this year. Whether he will follow the present first grade through next year or take up study of next year's first grade class depends on how this year's work turns out, Mr. Mills said.

The program is designed to serve every child eventually. Naturally more time will be spent with children who are particularly in need of assistance, but every child will be studied, Mr. Mills said.

The first step is to diagnose every child, learn to know him well. If the child is having difficulty the case is investigated more thoroughly from all angles—heredity, environment, health, psychology, a complete case history being built up.

Each week Mr. Temple takes his problems to a conference with university experts at Columbus where they are discussed and a solution reached if possible. Thus the children of the county will get the benefit of some of the best trained minds in the state, Mr. Mills pointed out.

Has Varied Training

The psycho-educational consultant is a new form of educational expert. Properly he has training as a psychiatrist, psychologist and special educator, equipped to work in all these fields to a greater or lesser extent, Mr. Mills said.

There is a definite administrative problem in the program, Mr. Mills said, pointing to the fact that there are approximately 300 first grade children in county schools and an area of 425 square miles to be covered by Mr. Temple.

Mr. Temple has no classroom activities as such other than in cooperating with all teachers in their problems.

In attempting to reach all the first grade children this year, the schools are reaching at the heart of one of the problems of schools everywhere, Mr. Mills believes.

"In the first three grades children are in their most impressionable years," he said. "If we can get them properly adjusted to school life and routine, then we can control the second three years. It is in the first three that children learn to read and in the second three that they read to learn. If we are successful we hope to be able to control even the problems of adolescence which crop out in junior high school."

He admitted that there is little point in inaugurating a corrective program for high school students, since they are rather matured and set in their habits by that time.

Problems Encountered

Among the chief problems found thus far by Mr. Temple in first graders is immaturity or unreadiness for school, Mr. Mills said. In these cases it is possible for a competent person to speed up the development process in the child and enable the child to adjust himself to school life along with his companions and thus avoid a warped point of view which might last throughout life.

Not entirely bookish is Mr. Temple who learns as much about his children on the playground as by talking with them indoors, Mr. Mills said. Mr. Temple is a former football player and by playing with the children is often able to learn much about them.

Mr. Mills stressed the fact that the program is not aimed specifically at the so-called problem children, but at every child. The child is taken at an early stage and moulded as far as possible according to sound educational policy to a point where he has acquired a normal outlook.

If unadjusted children are found, they are diagnosed closely and rebuilt, the undesirable being obliterated from the child's mind as much as possible and desirable tendencies created in their stead, Mr. Mills said.

Father Is Physician.

Mr. Temple's parental home is Canton where his father is a practicing physician. He studied five years at Miami university and completed pre-medical requirements, majoring in English, zoology, social science, and minoring in chemistry and physics, foreign languages and American history. He was active in extra-curricular work, chiefly athletics.

He obtained his master of arts degree at Ohio State university and a year and a summer more study in education and psychology. During this time he acted as psycho-educational consultant for the Wahalla House school in Columbus, organized and directed by Dr. Laura Zirbes, Ohio State sociologist.

The summers from 1931 to 1935 were spent in Battle Creek, Mich., where he was for two years a counselor and two years chief counselor and assistant director of the W. K. Kellogg Foundation health camp. The summer of 1936 found Mr. Temple assistant director of the Starved Rock area of Boy Scouts in western Illinois. This summer he was graduate assistant at Ohio State university department of education.

He plans to continue his graduate work in psychology at the university this winter and the coming summer, his work here being recognized by the university as a sort of laboratory course towards a doctor's degree.

While at Miami university, Mr. Temple met Miss Charlotte Freer who will become his bride Saturday. The wedding is to be held at the bride's home in Dayton. They will live at 373 East Center street where Mr. Temple has been making his home.

One of the dead was Tomokato Iwakura, correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Hochi and younger brother of Prince Iwakura.

ROOSEVELT WOULD MEDIATE CHINA WAR

By The Associated Press

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 15—President Roosevelt said in substance today that an attempt at mediation of the Sino-Japanese conflict would be the first step considered by the conference at Brussels of the nine-power treaty signatories, including the United States.

Asked at a press conference if mediation was a fair assumption to be drawn from his "fireside" radio speech last Tuesday night, the President remarked he had said just that in so many words.

He inquired of the court as to the admissibility of testimony that might be offered "if we could get somebody here whom she told she intended to take Wagner's life in an effort to defraud him?"

Outcalt referred then to an earlier assertion by Hoodin in which the defense counsel said he might show that other people were involved in the death.

APPLE BUTTER TIME

It's Here in Marion County: Expert Gives Recipe.

Apple butter is in the making at a number of points throughout the county, following close on the heels of the cider making season which got under way last week.

There are few persons in the apple butter making business in the county, a checkup showed, most persons making it for their own use and consequently in small quantities.

The formula, as recommended by one cider press operator who in past years made apple butter on a commercial basis, is to boil down 25 gallons of cider, add 10 gallons of apples which have been peeled and cored as though prepared for making apple sauce and sweeten the mixture with 25 pounds of sugar. The result should be about 10 gallons of apple butter.

STATE ORDERED TO PAY MARION COUNTY

were approved for this year by the county budget commission. The contracts, promising the local governments certain amounts of money, were based on estimates of the total amount of sales tax which the county probably would receive during the year.

The sales tax money involved does not concern the schools or relief, but merely the county proper, the city and other governmental divisions, Mr. Mounts said.

Facts Presented

At the hearing yesterday Mr. Michel presented to Judge King the county's facts in the matter, chiefly the bills which the county contends the state owes. These are $17,945.97 in relief grants, $2,766.09 in criminal court cases, $7,270 for district health office expenses, $841.23 for the county board of education, $3,319.28 for overcharge on a probate court hospitalization case and $171.02 for hospitalization of a parole violator. The total is $32,313.59.

Mr. Mounts said the next step towards effecting a possible agreement between the state and the county on settling the differences will have to come from the state, probably in arranging a conference. There has been some question about the deduction of the $32,313.59 from the $57,420.29 which the state says Marion county owes, Mr. Mounts said.

Another question, that of possible overcharging of the county for care of its patients by the state, is also undecided. The county's petition said the state charged $5.50 a week, far more than the per capita cost of caring for the patients. Mr. Mounts said today he had discovered that the state is permitted to charge the $5.50 a week by an act of legislature, which may nullify the county's claim for a reduction.

The constitutionality of the new law authorizing withholding of the tax money is questioned on the grounds the county is deprived of money rightfully due it without opportunity to be heard by a court, contrary to the state constitution.

The suit was filed in the name of county commissioners.

Mercury Drops to 29 During Night; Same Over Most of State.

The mercury dropped below the freezing mark in Marion last night for the first time this fall. Low mark for the night was 29, three degrees under the freezing level.

The sub-freezing plunge from a high of 49 yesterday will be short-lived, according to forecasts of government weather observers at Columbus, who predict fair weather and not so cold for tonight followed by partially cloudy weather and rising temperatures Saturday.

Freezing weather prevailed over most of Ohio early today. The Associated Press reported. Another heavy frost and the second day of cold weather, weather bureau officials said, definitely ended the growing season in Ohio.

Cincinnau reported a minimum temperature of 28, Columbus had 31 and Cleveland, benefiting by moderate winds from over Lake Erie, recorded 38.

Temperatures later today were expected to correspond with those of yesterday, which were 17 degrees below normal.

In Marion yesterday's temperatures were in sharp contrast with those of a year ago when the mercury ranged between a high of 76 and a low of 54.

CAPITAL EYES SENATE BLOCS

Workers Whether Factions Will Bury Hatchet in Special Session.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—A major topic of speculation in the capital today was whether at next month's special session of congress will bring a reconciliation between the Democratic factions in the senate.

Republicans as well as Democrats awaited the answer, in the belief it not only would spell success or failure for the administration's legislative program but also would help shape the political battleground for years to come.

Confirmation of the bitter warfare which broke out in Democratic ranks last session might foreshadow a permanent split in the ranks of the party and lead to a political realignment, based more on economic beliefs than on party labels.

Opinion on what will happen was divided. Many close observers of the political situation forecast, however, that there would be a partial reconciliation if President Roosevelt drops his court reorganization program, as his radio speech on Tuesday indicated.

This, however, probably would leave outside the administration fold some Democratic senators who had been openly critical of Roosevelt policies even before the court bill was submitted.

In that group some speculators placed Senators Glass and Byrd of Virginia, Copeland of New York, Bailey of North Carolina, Burke of Nebraska and King of Utah.

The approach of next year's congressional elections is expected to bring a revival of Republican activity, which may tend to close the Democratic ranks. During the court fight the Republicans maintained a studied silence to encourage the Democratic revolt.

Approach of the 1938 campaign also may cause some Democrats who broke with the administration on the court bill to seek restoration of their good standing in party ranks to obtain organization support for their reelection.

Speculation over the prospects for party unity brought forecasts of harmony today from two senators who backed the court bill—Minton, Democrat of Indiana, and Logan, Democrat of Kentucky. They predicted that with few exceptions the Democrats would back the President's program.

because all the people who have more money will be able to buy more eggs and butter and everything and the farmer can turn around and buy more shirts and shoes at higher prices.

"I was talking with Mr. Rattler about this only last night, and he said, 'Mary Rattler,' he said, 'I started making whortleberry crates in this town twenty years ago—that was just before we were married—and,' he said, 'we made them by hand then and we make them by machinery now, but I can't keep up with the whortleberry cratemakers in the East, who don't think a thing of laying out a million dollars for a new straight line cratemaker, and if they make me pay more wages and work my men fewer hours I'll just go out of business and then the big fellows will have what the government is denouncing.' That is what Mr. Rattler said, and I asked him what it was the government was denouncing. I mean what special thing, and he said, 'Mary, it's a monopoly.' So I said, 'well, William Rattler, what will the government do then?' And he said, 'Then it will break up the monopoly.' So, of course, I said, 'Well, then, you will be right back where you started, won't you?' And he said, 'You bet I will.' He said, 'I'll be right back working as a cooper at the high wages and short hours the government is going to put on, and I'll be a sight better off than I am now, at that, what with taxes and strikes and cares and all. Provided I get a job. And there's always W. P. A.' Now, ladies, don't you think that's wonderful? And I'm sure we all agree with Mrs. Roosevelt in her saying that housewives ought to get wages and hours, too. I think that's wonderful.

Birds-eye View

"Now, let's get a little bird's-eye view of the program that will be undertaken by our devoted public servants, the congressmen and their wives, when they get back to Washington. We haven't got much time, because we have got to take up the unfinished business and the report of the climbing wisteria committee. So I'll just say it in a few words. They're going to have a spring cleaning in Washington, ladies, only it will be in the fall, or, as the government calls it, a reorganization, so we can do all these things quick. So instead of all the talk that we have been accustomed to, we are going to have a centralized administration to get things done, just like I always said in this club, if you want things done well appoint a committee.

"The most wonderful part of it is that the government is going to arrange it just like one of those dollar dinners when the maid has a day off and you go to the gold room of the Clutcher hotel and don't have to think what to order, and, as all you ladies who keep house know, what a comfort that is. You have a choice of two kinds of soup, fresh perch or salmon salad, roast beef or lamb stew, tea, coffee or milk and rice pudding or fresh apple pie in season. It's all laid out before you and all you have to do is eat and pay.

"Because you have to go backward or forward in this world. You can't stand still. And though I can't put it so well as the President did in his fireside chat Tuesday night, still, it's not, as he said, the details that matter, but the direction in which we are going. And so, ladies, when the congressmen come marching in, two by two, of every kind and description like the animals in the Ark, they'll be given a balanced menu from which to select the dishes for the balanced life of everybody in this country, and I am sure that you will agree with me that it's wonderful."

JUDGE GAST PLACES BOYS ON PROBATION

Advises Parents in Auto Theft Case To Keep Closer Watch on Children.

Two youths, both 17, accused by police of having knowledge of a recent series of thefts from parked automobiles were placed on probation yesterday afternoon following a hearing before Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast, who censured the parents as much as the children. While the boys, one living in the East Side and the other in the country near Marion, were not charged with stealing from the autos, Judge Gast pointed out that they associated with older boys who were charged with the offense in municipal court.

Under the terms of the probation, which is to extend until the boys are 21, they are ordered not to drive automobiles or go out at night except with parents or a responsible guardian. Judge Gast advised the parents to keep a closer watch on the children.

In Ohio History

(From the J. H. Galbraith collection of Ohio Histories, written for The Associated Press.)

"WAHO, WAHO."

Waho was an Indian word signifying approval and in Howe's History the word is mentioned in an account of a consultation with Indian chiefs, held by Colonel Jackson.

Complaints from the Indians in what is now Fulton county, about robbing of traps and molesting of their women by frontier "bad men," resulted in an agent being sent from Washington to investigate. Colonel Jackson heard the complaints and told the Indians they would be compensated for their losses by the government, and taking the occasion to denounce the "bad men," he begged the Indians to observe that they were not real settlers, but adventurers not making their home there.

At the conclusion of the agent's address, that Indian word "Waho" ran around the table, meaning that the proposition was satisfactory.

GENTLEMEN, WE GIVE YOU THE MOST MODERN CHASSIS IN THE WORLD

Under the new beauty of Buick, modern engineering makes history, co-starring the DYNAFLASH ENGINE and TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING

WHAT HAPPENS inside the 1938 Buick engine happens nowhere else in the world.

That is not advertising language, it is cold-steel engineering fact.

Speeding through the raceways of the intake manifold, the fuel mixture vapor hurricanes into the cylinders at speeds around 250 miles an hour.

As it sweeps past streamline valve contours, a scientifically designed Turbulator, built into the piston face, flings it into airswirls of terrific turbulence.

The spark that leaps through that compact storm-center sets off a flashing cyclone of power, exploding with tornadic force!

Sitting in the driver's seat you become aware of power that is livelier and more brilliant because gasoline is giving up more performance than it ever gave up to motorists before!

TO MATCH this incomparable stride, Buick engineers now give you a kind of springing you will likewise find on no other car in the world.

Poised on jarless coils of easy-flexing steel, Buick floats free of bobble, jar, chatter, jounce.

The car will not over-steer or under-steer—skidding, even on icy highways, is blessedly reduced.

Rear tires no longer scuff half their life away through power-wasting wheel-slip.

Through winter and summer, without need of grease and without "seize" from rust, dirt, water or ice, springs keep their gentle, even cushioning for the life of the car.

YES, IT IS a great story, the story of these twin engineering triumphs in the 1938 Buick.

So great a story that it obscures half a score of other advances, themselves enough to make any car a wonderful buy.

We invite you to learn more about them this week at any Buick showroom.

"Better buy Buick!"
